Bootleg morphine valued at approximately $21,000 on the Atlanta market fell into the hands of federal officers Wednesday in connection with the arrest of two men and a woman. Indictment of the trio will be sought in the federal grand jury session Monday, according to Assistant District Attorney Hal Lindsay.

The morphine, packed in a large brass-bound trunk, was found in a filling station on Moreland avenue after the trunk fell off of a roadster twice while the woman was moving it, according to City Detective W. D. McGee, who accompanied the federal agents.

The two men held at police station gave the names of Harry Rosin, alias George Feigenbaum, of 330 Elmira place, and A. G. Wilson, of 1708 Cornell road. The woman was said to be Mrs. Harry Rosin, alias Anita Sander. The three will be given preliminary hearings this morning on narcotic charges.

Detective McGee said that Motor-cycle Officer Charles Schilling, trying to be courteous to a woman autoist in distress, and ignorant of the contraband nature of the trunk's contents, helped the woman replace the trunk on her car when it fell off on Moreland avenue. When the trunk fell off at a second time, the woman left it at a filling station with instructions to hold it until she returned, McGee said.

The narcotic agents and Detective McGee had been trailing Wilson for weeks, and on Wednesday morning they saw him meet Rosin and the woman at Ponce de Leon and Moreland, McGee said. The officers grabbed the two men and placed them under arrest, but the woman got away, he said. She was arrested later at the Elmira place address, and denied that she had any connection with the morphine-filled trunk, McGee said. Rosin is said to be wanted in New York as a fugitive from justice on a dope charge. An officer with the local narcotic bureau said that he aided in the arrest of Rosin in New York two years ago, and that Rosin was placed under a $5,000 bond but jumped bail.

District Attorney Clint W. Hager and Assistant District Attorney Lindsay expressed themselves as proud of the new seizure by the narcotic agents, and said that the arrests "further illustrate the perfect co-operation between Detective McGee and the narcotic officers."

The work of the narcotic men, aided by McGee, has been so efficient that there is no organized dope ring existing in Atlanta, and there will not be any, Lindsay said. "This catch is the result of long sustained and painstaking efforts on the part of the officers, who are frequently on duty 24 hours a day in their work against the dope runners," he said.

A large portion of the morphine was in a large paper sack and in tin cans, but some of it had been packed in oil paper. A pair of scales for weighing out the dope was found in the trunk. Officers said that the cubes average three to five grains each, and that morphine sells on the retail bootleg market here for $1 a grain.

Gain in Retail Trade Shown In Survey by Reserve Bank

Greater Consumption of Cotton and Increased
Production of Coal Reported For Atlanta
Area in Review of Activities for August.

Increased retail trade, greater consumption of cotton and improvement in production of coal in Alabama and Tennessee was shown Wednesday in the monthly business review of the sixth district of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Department store sales increased 9.4 per cent in August over July and averaged 9.6 per cent less in the actual dollar volume than in August, 1930.

Sales at wholesale of dry goods, hardware and shoes increased seasonally in August but sales in other reporting lines decreased.

Cotton consumption in the United States, as well as in Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, was greater in August than it was in that month last year and in Tennessee there was an increase over July.

Output of coal in Alabama and Tennessee increased seasonally in August but continued less than a year ago and pig iron production in Alabama declined substantially in August to the lowest level of any month since February, 1922.

August was the fourth month to show an increase in the production of cotton cloth by reporting mills in the district over the corresponding month last year. While the output of both cloth and yarn declined from July, cloth production in August was 1.7 per cent and of yarn 7.7 per cent greater than in August, 1930.

Orders booked by textile mills were greater than in July or in August a year ago and unfilled orders reported at the end of August by yarn mills were 31.2 per cent greater than a year ago. The number of workers at cloth mills increased slightly over July, but employment at both cotton and yarn mills was less than in August last year.

Cotton consumption in the district averaged 5.2 per cent smaller than in July, but was 16.2 per cent greater than in August, last year. Consumption in Alabama declined less than 1 per cent and in Georgia 8.9 per cent, while in Tennessee there was an increase of 3.7 per cent to the highest level since October, last year. Increases over August, 1930, for these states were, respectively, 22.2 per cent, 15 per cent and 5.7 per cent.

The number of cotton spindles active in the United States during August increased 786,264 over July and was greater by 808,338 than the number active in August, 1930.

A small decline in building permits issued at reporting cities in the district was accompanied by a more substantial decrease in the district as a whole, compared with August a year ago.

Anniston, Ala., with an increase of 17 per cent in amount of building permits, was the only reporting city in that state to show a gain.

MACDONALD TAGIT ON ELECTION CALL

Parliament Will Adjourn
Oct. 7; New Split Seen in Liberal Ranks.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald announced in the house of commons this afternoon that parliament will adjourn next Wednesday, but he refused to say whether that will mean a general election.

In the absence of definite information, there was all sorts of speculation. In the crowded lobbies of the house, many excited members declared confidently that parliament will be dissolved Thursday or Friday of next week and a general election will be held October 28 or 29.

Other commentators were exactly as certain that the MacDonald government will decide against going to the country until the nation's financial difficulties are settled.

Conservative leaders indicated they considered a general election next month to be at least a possibility by announcing tonight that the annual conference of the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Association, which was to have been held next week, has been postponed.

On the other hand, many commentators tonight believed the chances of an election had receded during the last 24 hours. In this view, Mr. MacDonald has found out that he cannot appeal to the country with any program which will satisfy conservatives and at the same time retain his present liberal supporters.

Sir Herbert Samuel, liberal home secretary, today saw the leader of his party, David Lloyd George, at the latter's house in Churt, Surrey.

Mr. Lloyd George, who is convalescing from his recent operation and so is unable to take an active part in London, is believed to be unalterably opposed to an election. Sir Herbert, it is understood, is ready to approve the move on certain terms.

Hence, in political circles, it was rumored tonight that there might well be a new split in the liberal party. But predicting fresh liberal splits has achieved almost the status of a national sport.

The government's economy bill, making effective cuts in national expenditures, including the dole, received royal assent tonight, after passing all stages in the house of lords.

Mr. MacDonald on Friday will visit his Seaham Harbor constituency, which "disowned" him as its member of commons. The prime minister will address a meeting of the local labor party and he is expected to give a full personal statement of the move that impelled him to head the national government.

ATHLETICS MEET ST. LOUIS TODAY IN WORLD SERIES

Champion Philadelphia
Nine Confident, Cardinals
Determined; Grove,
Derringer to Pitch.

BY ALAN GOULD.

Associated Press Sports Editor.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The world series, baseball's big show and one of the most picturesque pageants of American sport, will be launched tomorrow with prospects of balmy weather, a boom-time capacity crowd and a dramatic pitching duel between Lefty Grove, ace of the world champion Athletics, of Philadelphia, and Paul Derringer, freshman star of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Good times or otherwise, the world series annually commands a national interest second to nothing else in the country's sporting activity. This year is no exception, as the championship clubs of the American and National leagues come to grips in their struggle for diamond supremacy.

Sportsman's park has been sold out for the first two games, so far as reserved seats are concerned. A capacity crowd of nearly 40,000 is expected to watch Gabby Street's Cardinals begin a fight to stop the onrush of Connie Mack's machine, one of the greatest in modern baseball.

The National league's crippled forces enter the series again as underdogs, after four consecutive and decisive setbacks at the hands of their rivals. Even the enthusiasm of hometown support, the advantage of starting on their own grounds and the widespread admiration for Manager Gabby Street failed tonight to cloak the fact there is more hope than conviction in the chances of the Red Birds overthrowing the world champions. The Athletics, ruled 5-to-0 by favorites to capture their third straight crown and deservedly so, on the record and "dope."

The American league's forces have captured 16 of the last 19 series contests. If the Athletics triumph again, they will set a new all-time club record of three straight and a league record of five consecutive championships.

St. Louis is carrying the National league banner for the fourth time in six years. The Cardinals of 1926 were the last representatives of the senior circuit to win the world championship. Their leader, Gabby Street, is confident his club is the one destined to turn the tide, in spite of a succession of late-season injuries.

The Cardinals have lost their veteran right-hander, Jesse Haines, for the series. They probably will start with a substitute, Andy High, at third base instead of Earl (Sparky) Adams, who twisted an ankle ten days ago and is still hobbling. They will have a semi-casualty in centerfield, the youthful Pepper Martin, who has a slightly injured leg. They will gamble in the box with Paul Derringer, powerful young right-hander with a remarkable first-year record but no previous experience whatever in world series combat.

"We have survived a flock of difficulties before and come out on top," declared Street tonight. "We have had some tough luck but it's going to make my boys scrap that much harder. I will start Derringer and don't make any mistake about him. He has the stuff to win. If he does, just watch us."

This seemed to sum up the prevalent feeling. Although nine out of ten of the assembled experts predicted a decisive victory for the Athletics, they agreed the National league champions would be hard to stop if they got off to a winning start behind Derringer, the only freshman pitcher ever accorded the distinction of an opening world series assignment.

Connie Mack, arriving this afternoon with his collection of stars, maintained his usual reticence in discussing pitching prospects. There was no reason, however, to doubt he would again adopt the orthodox system of rotating Robert Moses Grove, greatest of modern pitchers,

BANKS TO REVISE SERVICE CHARGE

Atlanta Follows Other Cities in Changing Method of Fixing Costs.

Slight alteration in the regular service charge basis for small checking accounts will be put into effect beginning November 1 by the banks of Atlanta.

It was announced Wednesday through the Atlanta Clearing House Association. Members of the association are the First National, Fulton National, Citizens & Southern and Trust Company of Georgia.

The purpose of the change, which will effect checking accounts maintaining an average monthly balance of less than $100, is to base the service charge as closely as practicable in accordance with the number of checks issued by each depositor instead of on a bulk basis as heretofore used.

It was pointed out that the change was adopted, similar to systems adopted in other cities, after an analysis showed that a charge based upon the number of checks used would be more equitable to all accounts.

According to notices of the new schedule which will be placed in today's statements, there will be no change in balances under $100 up to a

Russell Will Name Control Board Soon

Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. said Wednesday he would be ready in a few days to announce the names of persons appointed to the state board of regents and the state board of control.

The governor said the legislative requirement that not more than five members of the board of regents could be graduates of the same school, made selection of the board difficult.

The board of regents will take charge of the University of Georgia and its branches, beginning the first of the year. The board of control will take over all penal and eleemosynary institutions at the same time.

Henry Clay Warmoth Dies in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Henry Clay Warmoth, 80, the first governor of Louisiana after the Civil War, died tonight at his home here following a lingering illness. His condition first was reported critical last Sunday night. He was governor of Louisiana from 1868 to 1872 and was active in the early organization of the republicans in the state.

Entering the gubernatorial position at the age of 26 years, Governor Warmoth was the youngest man ever to hold the office and he leaves a colorful page in the state's history.

Once dishonorably discharged from the Union army by direct order of General Ulysses S. Grant, he fought his case clear to a face-to-face interview with President Abraham Lincoln to win re-instatement as a federal colonel while still in his early twenties and to become military governor of Louisiana by appointment of President Grant.

Suspended Policeman Held on Drunk Charge

Less than a week after he had been suspended on charges of being drunk, Patrolman W. M. Harris, 404 Monument street, was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Captain George T. Butler and locked up, having been docketed on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct.

Last Thursday the police committee, after hearing a plea for Harris on behalf of his afflicted son, suspended the patrolman instead of discharging him. Wednesday afternoon Captain Butler received a call from neighbors, who said Harris was drunk and creating a disturbance. The captain personally investigated and arrested the suspended policeman, who now faces discharge.

Southwestern Head Cleared by Church

GREENWOOD, Tenn., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Dr. Charles E. Diehl, president of Southwestern College of Memphis, was acquitted of charges of unorthodoxy by unanimous vote of the Nashville presbytery of the Presbyterian church in the United States here today.

Immediately after the vote was taken, Eugene Hollins, of the Woodland Street Presbyterian church, of Nashville, who had preferred charges of heresy against Dr. Diehl, withdrew them.

An ad interim committee of the church reported on the charges without recommendation at 10 o'clock this morning. Reading of evidence started at 2 o'clock and took two hours. After a stirring defense of Dr. Diehl by Dr. James I. Vance, of Nashville, the vote was taken which resulted in the acquittal.

GOVERNOR PAUSES HERE ON JOURNEY TO WARM SPRINGS

Distinguished Georgians
Gather at Peachtree Station
To Give Affectionate
Ovation to Visitor.

Georgians Wednesday extended warm and official welcome to the man in whom their political faith is so strong that they regard him as the next president of the United States.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York, came back to Georgia Wednesday for a fortnight's rest at his cottage in Warm Springs. Leaving behind him all the cares and worries of office, as well as a progressive plan for the relief of New York's hordes of unemployed, the adopted son of Georgia was given an affectionate ovation as the Piedmont Limited paused at the Peachtree station, and a few minutes later, an official salute by the city as the string of Pullmans rolled under the shadows of the watersheds of the Terminal.

Man of the hour of the democratic party, Governor Roosevelt beamed a salutation in return to the scores of greetings extended him by high officials of the state and city, and warmly shook hands with a queue of private citizens which passed through the vestibule of the car in which he sat in his drawing room.

Declines To Talk Politics.
Laughingly repulsing any attempt by newspaper men to draw him into an expression on the impending national political struggle, and warding off queries concerning such ponderous subjects as prohibition, the tariff and other major political topics, Governor Roosevelt, as previously—about a year ago—insisted he will be glad of the opportunity to "get some sleep" in his little cottage among the tall, redolent pines of Meriwether county—the choice of all spots for solitude, in the opinion of the New York chief executive.

At Peachtree station to meet the Roosevelt party were Governor Richard B. Russell Jr., Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta; Mayor Ed Rivers, of Lakeland, Ga.; Lawrence S. Camp, chairman of the Georgia democratic executive committee; Major John S. Cohen, publisher of The Atlanta Journal; Clark Howell, publisher of The Atlanta Constitution; a battery of news cameramen and a group of local newspaper men.

In the Roosevelt party, in addition to the New York governor, were Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Margaret Le Han, his private secretary; Miss Margaret Donnelly, private stenographer; Sergeant Earl Miller, of the New York state police, and August Gomerich, mayor of the New York metropolitan detective force. The latter two members

SAVANNAH GETS PULP WOOD PLANT

Chemical Foundation Revealed as Donor of Herty $50,000 Fund.

The state forestry board Wednesday selected Savannah as the site for an experimental wood pulp and paper research plant, to be known as the Chemical Foundation, Inc., of New York, as the donor of $50,000, with which to carry on the work.

The state must provide $20,000 in 1932 and 1933 to be added to the amount in order that the desirability of southern woods for pulp and paper manufacture may be learned, and Dr. Charles H. Herty, nationally known chemist and research engineer, will be in charge of the work.

Announcement of the gift and selection of the site was made late today following a special meeting of the board in the office of Governor Russell. Cordele, Brunswick, Albany, Waycross and Savannah submitted sealed bids on the site for the experimental plant, but the Savannah offer was accepted with the stipulation that certain details be outlined in writing.

Members of the board said the Savannah offer included a building of adequate size located along the water front and valued at approximately $15,000. In addition, adequate light, power, water, and floor space was offered, free of cost. It was also agreed that 100 cords of wood would be delivered at the plant per year free of cost.

The offer of $50,000 by the Chemical Foundation, Inc., was made through a letter signed by Francis P. Garvin, president of the foundation, and directed to Governor Russell as president of the forestry board.

The Chemical Foundation, Inc., it is said in part, "heretofore takes pleasure in pledging the sum of $50,000 to the state of Georgia through its state board of forestry, the sum to be used for the purchase of equipment, or endowment of such a pulp and paper research plant. It is intended that this sum, or so much thereof as may be needed, shall be used for the purchase of equipment by the foundation under the direction of and with the approval of Dr. Charles H. Herty."

"The foundation will file with you on or before January 1, 1932, receipts for bills for equipment purchased, together with any unexpended balance, if there be such, which may be utilized as endowment fund for the research work of the state board of forestry."

Bonnell H. Stone, of Blairsville, member of the board, said Dr. Herty would return to New York and supervise the selection and construction of equipment for the research plant, which should be in operation by the first of the year. Dr. Herty will be in complete charge of this phase of the forestry work, he said, while Dr. S. W. McCallie will head the geological survey and Dr. M. Luffburrow, state forester, the state forest service.

The forest service and geological departments were merged under a bill adopted in the recent legislative session, effective January 1.

Mr. Stone also said that wood from all counties of the state would be utilized in the experimental work, the pines from the mountain and Piedmont section being chosen first. The findings of Dr. Herty and his associates will "be free to the world," he said, as the plant will be a strictly state institution.

Dr. Herty has long been interested in the use of Georgia pine for paper manufacture. Today's action of the forestry board placed Georgia at the head of states conducting such research, he said. It also marked the first time that the Chemical Foundation has voted a gift to the south for such experimental work, he said.

It was also announced following the meeting that the National Association of State Foresters would meet in Savannah on October 16 for a three-day session. He was in Georgia and one in Florida. Governor Russell and other officials were invited to attend.

The governor, Secretary of State John Wilson, J. Phil Campbell, director of extension of the state university; State Geologist S. W. McCallie, J. Leonard Roundtree, Summit; C. R. Harmon, Atlanta; Bonnell H. Stone, Blairsville; A. L. Sessoms, Coddell; B. M. Luffburrow and Dr. Herty attended today's meeting.

CHANGES ANNOUNCED FOR 'GLADES DISTRICT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Announcement that Fred C. Elliot, for years chief engineer of the Everglades drainage district, had been replaced in that position by Glenn V. Scott, West Palm Beach, denied that the district is making any attempt to repudiate its bonds, and an expression of optimism over the district's future were contained in a statement issued today by State Senator A. W. Young, general manager of the district. Confirmation of reports that Elliot has been succeeded as chief engineer by Scott, who for years has been assistant chief engineer, and that Elliot is now consulting engineer of the district, was made in a statement regarding the personnel of the district. It also revealed that W. T. Wallis Jr., West Palm Beach, had been made manager of the board's tax department.

2 BLOWN OVERBOARD IN BARGE EXPLOSION

IPSWICH, Mass., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Two men were blown overboard and one of them seriously burned late Tuesday as a 33-foot oil barge, the property of the Petroleum Transportation Company, caught fire and burned to the water line four miles northwest of Anisquam light, in Ipswich bay. A backfire, coast guard officers said, caused the fire. While the men were preparing a dory to abandon the craft, seven explosions followed in rapid succession, throwing them into the water.

They were picked up shortly afterward by the coast guard.

Churches Employ Jazz To Draw Congregations

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(UP)—A new campaign for greater attendance at services at English churches has been inaugurated by certain clergymen who now employ gramophones, jazz bands, floodlights and film shows to attract congregations. Within the last two weeks one clergyman instituted motion picture shows after the Sunday service; another announced free parking for motorists; another organized a revue; still another installed a broadcast of bells. One curate played a tennis match on condition that all members of his opponent's club came to church on Sunday if he won the match. A jazz band played at evening services at All Saints' church, Manchester. The rector of Over Wallop, near Andover, obtained a large congregation by holding a sportsman's service after a cricket match.

EARLY TRIAL SEEN FOR STYLES, AIDES

Lichtenstein Cases Will Be Set for Early in November, Jones Says.

Three persons indicted jointly for the murder of Big Ben Lichtenstein at his Ponce de Leon apartment, will be tried possibly the first week in November, it was stated through Solicitor-General John A. Boykin's office Wednesday, while efforts were being made to either establish or discredit the belief that the 32-20-caliber death gun in the Lichtenstein case was the same used a few days earlier to kill Wheeler Mangum, local laundry owner.

Lewis P. Jones, calendar clerk, stated that the trials of Harry Kousouf, J. D. Styles (alleged trigger man) and George Cox, the trio named in the murder indictment, would be placed on trial in Fulton superior court during the first two weeks of November. He added that it was probable that the trials would be called the first week as he has scheduled the trial of former Police Secretary W. T. Morris, charged with the murder of a superior officer, Lieutenant J. W. Barfield, also for the first two weeks in November.

A third murder indictment will be given a hearing within the next few weeks, said Mr. Jones, as the trial of Arthur Atkinson, former county policeman, charged with the murder of a Fort McPherson soldier, was placed on the criminal court calendar Wednesday for October 19. In the meanwhile Solicitor Boykin was seeking to ascertain whether the same gun played the death part in both the Lichtenstein and the Mangum slayings. He posted two letters Wednesday to authorities on ballistics. The first was to the chief of police at New Orleans, asking for the assistance of the expert there, and the second was addressed to Calvin H. Goddard, of New York and Chicago, who is recognized as the leading authority on ballistics in the world.

Tin Bucket Saves Man From Death Under Sand

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Wilbur C. Bathe, 45, was alive today because of a battered tin bucket. A ton of sand buried him yesterday as he was plastering a pipe connections in a deep sewer ditch. But as he fell when the trench wall caved in, his half-filled plaster bucket landed over his face, keeping his mouth and nose free from sand. He was only partly conscious when fellow workmen dug him out after 10 minutes, but was quickly revived.

GRANGE DENIES BEER WILL HELP FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Arguments that beer would help the farmer were answered today by a national farm organization, the National Grange, with the statement its return would hurt him.

The Grange numbers more than 800,000 farmers, in every state represented. Its executive committee is meeting to deal with the agricultural crisis. The organization has long supported the dry cause.

The statement, signed by Louis J. Taber, national master, called it "tragic to find so-called national leaders pressing for beer to combat the depression. It supports the position taken by Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, who contends brewing of 4 per cent beer would result in a reduction in consumption of dairy products, soft drinks, candy and the like. Capper was answering Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, who promised to support anew a bill for 4 per cent beer.

Even while the Grange executive committee was preparing its statement in a hotel room high above Washington's streets, Secretary Hyde's investigation of the effect of beer manufacture on the farmers' income was being undertaken at the agricultural department. Hyde dropped word last week he planned such a study the better to answer individual inquiries and satisfy his own mind. Thereby he stirred afresh beer talk that has persisted in the capital all summer.

HALE AND BRITTEN SCORE NAVAL CUTS

Hoover Has 'Disregarded Mandate of Congress,' Says Maine Senator.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Already two friends of the navy in congress have whipped into action against the administration's cut in the destroyer building program.

Chairman Hale, of the senate naval committee, today added his protest to that of Representative Britten, of Illinois, who headed the last house naval committee. Both usually are administration supporters.

Hale left his home at Portland, Maine, for the capital, saying the president had "disregarded the mandate of congress," and administered a crushing blow to the national defense. Britten said it was "difficult to see how the president can undo what congress does when congress is charged by the constitution with maintaining an adequate national defense."

While congress had authorized the construction of 11 cruisers, and appropriated $10,000,000 for beginning work, Secretary Adams announced yesterday that for reasons of economy only five would be built at present.

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, today laid before Adams a program of curtailed activity designed to meet Mr. Hoover's demand for reduced expenditures. The details of the plan were not made known. It was evolved in broad outline as an organization and operations program in connection with American naval strength under the provisions of the London naval treaty. Naval officials said the application of its principles would not affect basic naval policy.

Upon his return from a trip to the west coast, Admiral Pratt, as Secretary Adams' chief naval adviser, turned his attention immediately to President Hoover's request that the navy sharply pare its 1933 budget estimate of $401,000,000. The president hopes to have the figure reduced to $340,000,000.

Symphony Is Stolen From Young Composer

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Roy Harris, former Los Angeles truck driver who is now one of the most widely known younger American composers, has asked aid of police in recovering the manuscripts of a symphony and a toccata stolen from his automobile.

He left the manuscripts in his parked car. The brief case containing them was the only thing stolen, although there were two trunks of clothes and other valuables there, too. The symphony was to be played for the first time in November by the Rochester orchestra at Rochester, N. Y. He completed its 160 pages of script six months ago, shortly after returning from Paris where he spent four years on a Guggenheim fellowship.

"DIPLOMA MILL" FIGURE ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Dr. Robert A. Adcox, 71, who figured in the medical "diploma mill" expose of 1925, shot and killed himself in the bathroom of his home here today. Mrs. Adcox told police her husband had been despondent because of illness and inability to find employment since his release from the city workhouse, where he served six months for selling a bogus chiropractic diploma. He had pleaded guilty.

Yates Webb instructed the jury not to return a verdict before 9 a. m. tomorrow. The trial began August 31.

COUNCIL TO DEFER MANCHURIAN ISSUE

Japanese Withdrawal From Disputed Area Expected in Two Weeks.

BY P. I. LIPSEY JR. GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 30.—(AP)—After Japan had conceded that the League of Nations council might obtain information about the Manchurian situation from neutral officials on the spot, the council tonight adjourned consideration of the Sino-Japanese clash until a special session October 14.

By that time, it is hoped, all Japanese troops in Manchuria will have been withdrawn to the positions they occupied before the recent outbreak. Dr. Alfred Sze accepted the adjournment for China with the reservation that his nation, after the status quo has been restored, still will expect the council to participate in determining responsibility for the conflict and for fixing "just reparations."

The council provided that its president, Alejandro Lerroux, Spain's foreign minister, might call an urgent meeting before October 14 if unforeseen developments require, or might cancel the special session if convinced it was unnecessary.

The record of service which has attended the progress of the Davis-Simpson-Horne Coal Company since its establishment now extends itself to the presentation of one of Atlanta's most modern and up-to-date coal yards and office buildings—ideally located and equipped to meet the most exacting demands for service and quality coal. The opening of this new office will not affect the company's activities at the Wylie Street address, as this location will now serve as a branch of the newly established Main Office and Yards.

By serving their customers promptly and efficiently—the company has enjoyed an ever-growing clientele, and their pledge for service during the coming year, together with the new facilities and highest grades of coal at minimum prices—is worthy of your investigation and patronage.

CANNON WILL FACE GRAND JURY QUIZ

Bishop's Aide in Anti-Smith Campaign To Be Included in Probe.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The case of Bishop Cannon is to be laid before a grand jury.

Evidence obtained by the senate campaign funds committee will be presented to determine whether the churchman's anti-Smith activities of 1928 were in violation of the corrupt practices law.

District Attorney Rover announced today he would take this action. The inquiry is to begin next Thursday.

Miss Ada L. Burroughs, of Richmond, Va., treasurer of the state anti-

Smith democratic committee, headed by Bishop Cannon, will be included in the grand jury investigation also, he said.

Subpenas were sent out for more than a score of witnesses. It was understood the list includes those who were called by the senate committee in inquiring into the charge of Representative Tinkham, republican, of Massachusetts, that Bishop Cannon had failed to account for a major part of $65,000 contributed to his campaign by E. C. Jameson, a New York republican.

The bishop has challenged the authority of the committee to inquire into his campaign expenditures on the ground that his activities were confined to one state and therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the federal corrupt practices act. He has repeatedly stated that he welcomed a grand jury investigation.

Miss Burroughs has twice refused to testify before the committee.

Bishop Cannon has been invited by Chairman Nye of the committee to explain the record of his financial transactions in the 1928 campaign but has given no intimation of accepting this invitation.

BODY IDENTIFIED IN COLLINGS CASE

Companions of Mechanic Sought in Investigation of Yacht Murder.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A coroner's identification of a body washed ashore from Long Island sound gave new life today to the sifting of the latest clue being scrutinized in the quest for the yacht slayers of Benjamin Collings.

After Coroner William Gibson, of Suffolk county, issued a death certificate in the name of William Smith, of Norwalk, Conn., authorities announced the body found yesterday would be exhumed.

The certificate was issued on the basis of a statement by Richard Raymond, a friend of Smith's, who said he believed the body to be that of Smith because of a scar under one arm.

Raymond said Smith disappeared about the time of the Collings slaying three weeks ago. Smith had been living, Raymond said, with Dr. Lewis Ritchie, a veterinarian, and the latter's son. Raymond said he did not know the present whereabouts of the Ritchies.

The man identified as Smith died of drowning, Coroner Gibson said tonight on the basis of a preliminary report of an autopsy made before the body was buried yesterday. Plans were made to obtain a court order for the exhumation of the body tomorrow morning.

The authorities were proceeding on the possibility that the body might be that of the "mysterious" wounded man mentioned by Mrs. Collings in her story of an attack on her husband by two men. The "pirates," she said, upon boarding the boat told Collings they wanted him to take a wounded companion to a hospital on the Connecticut shore.

ATLANTIC HEADS BIG ICE MERGER

Headquarters for Giant Combine Will Be Located in Atlanta.

Merger of the assets and facilities of two of the south's largest manufacturers and distributors of ice was disclosed Wednesday with announcement of purchase by the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company of the Southeastern Ice Utilities Corporation, Portsmouth, Va. The transaction gives the Atlanta concern total assets of more than $25,000,000 and an operating territory of seven states.

Atlanta is to be the headquarters of the combined ice manufacturing corporation, according to the plans of the merger. No change will be made in the present offices of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company. Letters from the president of the Atlantic, F. W. Beazley, are expected to be in the hands of stockholders today announcing the transaction, which will make Atlanta the headquarters of one of the nation's largest corporations of its kind.

According to the terms of the merger, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company, with assets of $16,000,000, purchased the Southeastern Ice Utilities Corporation, having assets of $10,000,000, issuing to the owners of the latter corporation Class A Atlantic Ice stock equivalent to their equities in Southeastern Ice. The latter are subject to $4,000,000 bonded indebtedness. No Class B stock of the Atlantic Ice was given.

General benefits to be derived through merger of the two organizations, as pointed out by officials of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company, will include the operating economy to be effected by combination of the overhead operations of the two organizations, added security to the company's earnings deriving therefrom from a wider and more extensive territory, and the increase of lines and distribution by the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company.

Mr. Beazley has been a connecting link between the Southeastern Ice Utilities Corporation and the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company for several years. At the time of the merger he was president of the Atlantic Ice and vice president and general manager of the Southeastern Ice.

When the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company was reorganized about two years ago through Courts & Company, Atlanta financiers, Mr. Beazley, then connected with the Southeastern Ice, was made president of the Atlantic Ice, in addition to maintaining his offices with the Portsmouth concern.

Under the reorganization plan, Atlantic Ice showed an increase of earnings last year of $300,000 over the previous year, and to date has an increase in earnings of $178,000 over last year. While no merger of interests between the Atlanta concern and the Portsmouth corporation was effected until the present announcement, increased possibilities under a combined management of President Beazley were believed to have led to the merger through purchase of the Southeastern Ice assets.

At a meeting of the stockholders and directors, scheduled for October 15, the contemplation of removal of the Portsmouth headquarters to Atlanta will be decided. The new territory brought into the distributing scope of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company by the merged interest comprises that of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. The other states now served by the Atlantic Ice are Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Florida.

ROTHSTEIN DOCUMENTS USED IN GOTHAM PROBE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Documents of the slain Broadway gambler, Arnold Rothstein, were used today at a lively hearing of the Hofstadter legislative committee to support testimony that aides of Rothstein had operated "floating games" in Tammany clubs.

The papers were only one of a series of development that excited the attention of spectators in the large courtroom where the legislative committee is pursuing its inquiry into the municipal government.

A retired police lieutenant, who once conducted an unsuccessful campaign to drive gambling out of the city, testified gambling could not exist in New York without the protection of "politicians and others."

'Fair and Warmer,' Says Forecaster

Rainfall deficiency for month, 1.67 in. Rainfall deficiency for year, 15.39 in. Temperature for Wednesday, 74 degrees. Temperature one year ago, 81 degrees.

The "fair and warmer" weather predicted for Wednesday will not materialize until today, according to the local weather bureau forecast. Wednesday was a windy day and the stiff breeze from the east caused the temperature to stick between 71 and 74 degrees, though it was originally slated to climb higher. Today's winds will blow from the southeast, making for warmer weather and the mercury is slated to hit 80 degrees. East winds are always cool, it was stated, accounting for a cool day and night Wednesday.

HAROLD LLOYD'S HOME DAMAGED BY FLAMES

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 30.—(AP)—An early morning fire in the bathroom of Harold Lloyd's home today did considerable damage after the motion picture comedian guided his family to safety with his 7-year-old daughter, Gloria, in his arms.

Lloyd was awakened by Gloria's cries. He seized her and was followed by Peggy, 6-year-old daughter. A nurse carried Harold Jr. to safety, while Mrs. Lloyd, the former Mildred Davis, attempted to extinguish the flames.

No one was injured except Ernest King, the Lloyd chauffeur, who suffered minor burns attempting to fight the flames. The loss was undetermined, firemen said.

JUSTICES TO DEBATE NEW COURT CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Means of making the scales of federal justice balance better will be considered tomorrow when Chief Justice Hughes meets with judges from the ten federal circuits.

The chief justice, who called the conference, believes approval should be given to the American Bar Association recommendation that bar committees be created in each district to study court problems from the standpoint of the lawyer. Conclusions reached by the committees then would be taken up at the annual meeting of senior circuit judges.

For an "Individuality"—not an "Anybody!"

Pebeco is the MOST EXPENSIVE tooth paste in the world—to make, but not to buy.

It costs more to make because 40% is an expensive ingredient not found in other tooth pastes—an ingredient put there because of its value in oral hygiene.

Do not look for a sweet taste...or a foamy lather...but for a characteristic tang that signifies it is doing its work. This is Pebeco's distinctive signature.

You have to think to like Pebeco—but, remember, irrelevant candy-like tastes, or extravagant claims in advertising cannot benefit your teeth—it is what is in the tooth paste that counts.

Answer: No. The pictures appear both daily and Sunday.

Question: "I should like to know if I will have ample time to work out the answer for the last proverb picture. Our mail here is very slow. Mrs. S. S. Sayer, Rayle, Ga."

Question: "Referring to proverb picture No. 14. The illustration will perfectly exemplify either of two proverbs given in your list and also not given there. These proverbs are: 'No rose without a thorn,' 'Roses have thorns' and 'Every rose has its thorn.' It is quite evident that these three are simply various statings of the same proverb. I would like to know officially what would be done in a case like this. J. D. K., Atlanta."

Answer: Should the proverb "No rose without a thorn" be the correct answer to picture No. 14, then the other two versions you cite will also be counted as being correct.

Rabbi Points Out Merits of Contest

RABBI HARRY EPSTEIN.

The Constitution's $2,300 proverb picture contest, which has aroused such widespread interest, has been unanimously praised by clergymen of every denomination throughout Georgia. Rabbi Harry Epstein, of Atlanta, has this to say about proverbs and their fascination:

"A proverb contest, such as that now being conducted by The Constitution, is a peculiarly appropriate undertaking for a daily newspaper. Proverbs are the epitomized expression of popular and practical wisdom. As proverbs are common to all peoples, and tend not merely to entertain and to please, but also to inform and instruct to stimulate thinking and to arouse discussion—among the contestants and readers generally. I have been very much interested in The Constitution's proverb contest from the start, and I consider it a most laudable undertaking."

Southern California Votes $200,000,000 For Water Supply

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Southern California has taken a long look in the future by voting almost 5 to 1 to issue $200,000,000 Colorado river aqueduct bonds, which will provide a water supply for an estimated population of 7,000,000.

Dwarfing the Hoover dam project in size, the aqueduct will bring water across the great American desert from the Colorado river, a distance of 200 miles, and distribute it to 13 cities which have organized the metropolitan water district.

The Hoover dam project calls for an outlay of $165,000,000. The Colorado river aqueduct will virtually equal in magnitude the federal government's Panama canal. It will provide employment for 10,000 California citizens for six years.

Frank E. Weymouth, chief engineer for the metropolitan water district, said today his staff was ready to start work immediately on the project.

ERLANGER ESTATE SUE BY WINECOFF

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—W. F. Winecoff, of Atlanta, Ga., and C. F. Niebergall, of New Orleans, have filed suit against the temporary administrator of the estate of Abraham I. Erlanger, theatrical producer, for $387,816 and a complete accounting of the estate.

The claim against the estate is based, it was said today, on an agreement whereby, the suit maintains, Erlanger agreed to lease a theater constructed in Atlanta by Winecoff, who borrowed funds under a trust indenture with a bank and Niebergall. The $387,816 sought is for rentals under the alleged agreement.

In the suit, Saul J. Baron, temporary administrator of the estate and formerly Erlanger's personal attorney, is charged with having failed to render an accounting of the estate since his appointment May 2, 1930. The court is asked to compel him to file a complete inventory of assets and liabilities.

Baron and other executors of the estate have estimated its value at $825,000 but Charlotte Fixel Erlanger, who is seeking to establish her claim as Erlanger's common-law widow, has maintained the producer left $100,000,000.

Ceremony To Mark Formal Opening Of New Broad St. Viaduct Friday

Pretentious ceremonies, in which officials of Atlanta and Fulton county will participate will mark the formal opening at 10 o'clock Friday morning of the reconstructed Broad street bridge. The ceremonies will be conducted by the Central Marietta Street Association, of which James D. Robinson is president.

The improvement is regarded as one of the most important in the heart of Atlanta. The bridge is of the most modern deck type and was constructed jointly by the city and Fulton county. The Whitehall street bridge now is the only one in downtown Atlanta which is not of modern construction. The Central Marietta Street Association has been prominent in civic and industrial development of Atlanta for the past several years and in its membership are included many of Atlanta's business leaders and executives. Members of the Atlanta police band will furnish music. Mayor James L. Key, members of the bridge committee of council, Fulton county commissioners and others identified with the two co-operating governments in rebuilding the structure will participate in the short ceremony.

In addition to Mr. Robinson, the following others are officers of the Central Marietta Association: W. E. Mitchell, John W. Grant and C. F. Palmer, vice presidents; Ronald Ransom, treasurer, and Gottschaldt-Humphrey, Inc., secretary.

ROOSEVELT PLEDGED COPELAND'S SUPPORT

New York Senator Urges Platform Advocating Prohibition Referendum.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt by the democrats in 1932 and adoption of a platform pledging a referendum on prohibition were advocated Tuesday by Senator Copeland, of New York.

The senator said that if the democratic convention were held today Roosevelt would be nominated. He said he supported the New York governor, but made no predictions about what would happen when the convention meets next year.

Copeland praised the suggestion recently advanced by Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, for a democratic platform pledging party members in congress to vote for resubmission of the eighteenth amendment.

Copeland said there was a "growing sentiment" that prohibition must be submitted to the people. He cited the action of the American Legion, endorsing resubmission as "a very significant thing."

Copeland said there was strong sentiment in the country for immediate amendment of the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer and wine. He predicted there would be no legislation along that line in the next session, however, though he said there would be more votes in favor of it than before.

ARGUMENTS CLOSE ON RATE HIKE PLEA

I. C. C. Takes Appeal Under Advisement After Long Series of Hearings.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(P)—The plea of the nation's railroads for higher freight rates was taken under advisement today by the interstate commerce commission.

Lengthy public hearings ended at noon with a warning from railroad attorneys that refusal would entail wage cuts and labor troubles all over the nation's vast transportation system.

They closed their argument, too, with a reiteration of their contention that the transportation act makes favorable action mandatory.

The petition of the roads for a 15 per cent blanket increase in freight charges has been before the commission since June 17. Extended hearings have been conducted in many parts of the country. A final decision is expected by November 1.

Grenville Clark, of New York, representing railroad security holders, today freely predicted that if the petition is denied an effort will be made to reduce the wages of railroad workers. This, he said, would be followed by widespread strikes.

"I have figured out as nearly as possible," he added, "that it would mean 1,400 different possible mediation cases. This commission should not hurl this controversy on the country."

Beginning July 15 the commission held hearings continuously with the exception of brief recesses. Arguments started September 21.

The railroads based their plea on section 15-A of the interstate commerce act. This provided that the railroads were to be permitted a "fair return" not to exceed 6 per cent of their investments. This was to be applied to the carriers as a group.

The carriers contended that they never had reached the figure set by law and that their income this year would be almost as low as 2 per cent. The increase, they claimed, would bring net income to about 4 per cent.

Shippers from throughout the country flocked to hearings in Washington, Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Portland, Ore., and Portland, Maine, to oppose the increase.

The time the commission will take to consider the case and reach a decision is uncertain. Basing estimates on past cases it was regarded at the commission offices as likely that the opinion will come before the end of October.

PRISONER ADMITS GEORGIA ESCAPE

PRINCETON, W. Va., Sept. 30.—(P)—A tale of two slayings and an escape from a Georgia road gang while serving a life sentence was told to Sheriff J. Otis Boling today by Marshall Bass, 32, Oglethorpe, Ga., serving a 99-day sentence in the Mercer county jail for driving while intoxicated.

Bass, the sheriff said, told him that the first slaying occurred in Lawrence county, Georgia, in 1923, and the second in November, 1930, in Jacksonville, Fla. Eighteen months ago, he said, he escaped while working on roads in Macon county.

FLORIDA BANK BANDITS SHOT AND CAPTURED

LAKE PLACID, Fla., Sept. 30.—(P)—Ernest Stout, 44, was in a hospital and Tip Mercer, 40, in jail, as the result of a $10,000 bank robbery here late today. Stout was shot in the shoulder by Tom Bozeman, city marshal, who was standing opposite the Tropical State bank as Stout and Mercer emerged, their hands full of currency.

Bozeman said he was standing across from the bank talking to O. F. Gardner, a citizen, when the robbers drove up in an automobile and entered the institution.

Two boys, Robert Johns and Grady Parish, were playing in front of the building. They ran across the street and told the marshal the bank was being robbed. Before he could move, he said, the two men appeared with the money.

GRIZZARD IS RETAINED TO AID CARRAN PROBE

Attorney Frank T. Grizzard has been retained by Solicitor-General Claude C. Smith, of the Stone Mountain circuit, and Alfred M. Carran, of Detroit, to assist in the investigation of the slaying in Campbell county of C. M. Carran, of Jacksonville, there was a brief delay.

Grizzard said that while no definite clue has been unearthed, he hopes to have new developments in the case within the next few days. Mrs. C. M. Carran, widow of the slain automobile accountant, is in jail at Fairburn under a coroner's jury recommendation that she be held as an accessory or accomplice.

Carran's father, before leaving for Detroit with the body, said that he "wants the guilty party or parties, whoever they may be, brought to justice," Grizzard said. The Jacksonville man was beaten to death on a lonely road near Stonewall.

His widow told officers that two negroes held them up, gagged her and bound her hand and foot and clubbed her husband.

M'KELLAR ANSWERS WOOD DEFICIT CHARGE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 30.—(P)—Senator McKellar, Tennessee democrat, today described an attack made on him by Representative Wood, republican of Indiana, as "an old republican dodge of abusing an opponent when they have no facts to rely on."

Wood, in a statement issued through the republican national committee, charged that McKellar contributed toward the deficit of the treasury by introducing or voting for bills aggregating $1,445,000,000, including the Tennesseean's ballot to override President Hoover's veto of veterans' legislation.

Five Escape Terrors Of Madman Menace On Lonely Island

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 30.—(P)—How a family of five lived four days in terror on a lonely island with a madman was related today when Frank Crapo, 45, was committed to the state hospital for the insane at Taunton. Crapo was brought here in irons from No Man's Land by the coast guard.

The coast guardmen told the story. Last Saturday Crapo went violently insane. He believed some one wanted to shoot him and tried to secure a shotgun under the delusion of self protection. The family of Ralph W. Wood, sole residents of the little island off Martha's Vineyard, consisting of Wood's wife, his mother, his brother, his son and daughter-in-law, feared for their lives. They dared not go to sleep. The men of the family alternately stood guard over Crapo, night and day for four days. Sometimes when the wind howled and the sea roared against the shore, Crapo sprang from his bed and fled unclad into the night. An effort was made to get him into a small motorboat, used to communicate with the mainland, but Crapo fought them off. Finally assistance was secured from the coast guard and Crapo was brought manacled to the mainland.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 1, 1931.

ATLANTA'S BOOMING TRADE.

Renewed confidence is to be found by every Atlanta business concern, of whatever nature, in the federal reserve bank figures showing that retail trade in this city in August led the south in percentage of increase over the business done during 1930.

Still further evidence of sound local conditions is to be found in other figures in the reserve bank trade report, showing that of all the cities in the district Atlanta is the only one showing an increase in department store sales for the first seven months of 1931 as against the same period of last year.

While the average trade increase for the other cities in the territory during August came to only 9.4 per cent, the figures for Atlanta show that this year's sales were higher than those last year by 12.7 per cent.

Convincing evidence of the increasing strength in local department store business is to be found in the figures for July and August of this year. Figuring the monthly average for the past three years on a basis of 100, the federal reserve statement report shows that sales in Atlanta reached 115.7 during July and 130.3 during August.

While Atlanta was making this splendid record of recovery from last year's reduced trade, Birmingham showed a decrease of 10.1, New Orleans 10.7 and 19 other cities in the district 11.4.

Such figures spell two things—increasing faith in better times by the buyers of Atlanta and the offering of merchandise by the city's merchants at such reduced prices as to coax inactive dollars out of their resting places to again begin circulating in the marts of trade.

Much of the credit for the splendid showing made by Atlanta in the federal reserve report is due to her merchants who, while keeping up the high quality of their merchandise, have cut their profits to the bone.

That their wise policy has met with success is shown by the reserve report.

THE FARM BOARD SHOULD GO.

About the unselfish job that a prophet can undertake is to forecast what the new congress will do this coming winter. It will face a whole flock of suffering situations that will be clamoring for "relief" and there is one big relief that most observing persons confidently expect it to enact. That is to relieve the country from the functions and follies of the federal farm board.

Of all the institutions ever devised to serve the welfare of the farmers of the nation and the general agricultural interests of a great people, the federal farm board has turned out to be the most monumental of government failures. It has failed signally to deal with the problems of agriculture with common sense and business skill. It has messed up the production and marketing problems so that they are in worse state than ever. It has ineffectively used up half a billion dollars in its fanciful experiments. It has acquired and holds in storage large ratios of the surplus crops to increase the depression in home and foreign markets.

From all parts of the country, from republicans and democrats equally, are coming insistent demands that congress shall promptly squelch the board, save what may be possible from its frozen assets, and free the people from being further gulled and gutted by farm board follies.

Agriculture knows now well enough what ails it and in the 6,000,000 farmers of the nation there should be found enough sense and experience to work the industry out of its present plight. They must do for themselves what no farm board and no congress can do for them—that is throw off their self-imposed curse of overproduction and keep their crops a shade under the world demand for them.

CALIFORNIA'S COUNTIES.

Out in California this year a "Legislative Commission on County Home Rule," after a careful investigation of county government conditions in the state, made recommendations for legislation to reform and regularize the conduct of county affairs.

It is first proposed to amend the state constitution so as to give the state larger control of county governments, to classify counties and provide optional charters defining their powers, establishing a chief executive for each county, as in the case of municipal corporations, to co-ordinate all county functions, and to facilitate the use of municipal powers by counties electing to operate in that way.

Perhaps the most pertinent recommendation is that for "consolidation of functions or offices within the county, between counties, or between counties and cities."

That is the suggestion that goes to the roots of many of the evils in county government of which people almost everywhere complain. For instance, the recommendation says that only the assessor, auditor, district attorney, sheriff and judges should be elected, other officers to be appointed by the county chief executive, and that the assessor should be vested with the functions of tax and license collector and treasurer.

That also would make it lawful for two or more counties to have the same officer for certain functions common to them, thus reducing personnel and securing efficiency at less expense. The like arrangement between the county and its chief city would be permissible and legal. The whole plan looks to more efficient and economical county administrations.

It will be interesting to watch the progress of this county reform movement in the great Pacific state, as it may develop many things valuable to other states with overloaded and extravagant county governments.

FACING THE DEATH PENALTY.

It is the opinion of Colonel George B. McClellan, former mayor of New York city, that we are now floundering in a fog of economic ignorance. He says:

I was professor of economic history at Columbia University for twenty years, and we evolved a science of political economy which has been completely blown up by the war. Today no one knows less about conditions than an economist.

That surprising shot seems to hit the bull's eye bang in the pupil. A survey of what has been happening all over the earth since the big war ended and has come to the devastating depression of world economies of the past two years reveals how impotent the economists have been to keep the nations on even keels and sailing prosperous seas. There is not one of the professional publicists in any leading country who has made right diagnoses and given safe counsel to the conductors of governments.

Today political economy is a chaotic study in all the nations and not less so in the United States than in Germany, England or France. Notwithstanding the enormous wealth of our country, and the enterprise and business skill of our people, we find ourselves facing conditions that no intelligent American ever expected to envelope us, stagnate our industries, put millions of our workers on the hoof, and cause the people to gather in and hide their resources.

The republican party, always claiming to possess the wisest economists of the nation and the only safe and sure administrative skill, has led the people down into the lowest grounds of inertia and distress they have ever known. It has failed in every pledge put forth in 1928, has disappointed every hope based upon its promises, and heavily decimated the labor, the earnings and the savings of 120,000,000 people.

And now it is dumb when asked to explain and excuse the ruin it has wrought. In that attitude it faces the guillotine of popular indignation and patriotic punishment.

We have the largest gas ship in the world as well as the largest gas senate, even with Tom Hefflin eliminated.

Now the shrewd class of democrats is trying to find the right man for the other half of the Roosevelt presidential ticket next year.

Tom Marshall voiced the country's need for a good five-cent cigar. Now who will lead out for a good football game at a dollar a throw?

That "Secret Six" in Chicago has certainly got the gangsters and gunmen traveling in low gear.

The British are again demonstrating that the pound sterling is more of an idol than an indispensable.

Disarmament will be easier when the nations go broke and can no longer pay their munitions bills.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Assisi is like a book. The farther you read in it, the greater becomes its beauty. I stood on a hill just now and the valley seemed a precious manuscript full of gold and silver miniatures. Softly the sun was sinking. Perugia in the distance glittered like a crown of jewels as the blue velvet curtain of evening was slowly descending. The darkness came like a prayer and the stars swayed with infinite grace like the gestures of St. Francis, whose halo still moves through this wondrous land. Even the stones by the wayside tell his story.

Here it becomes possible to see the world as a magnificent tapestry on which God himself has embroidered the designs. The spectacle is so overwhelming that words fail and one can only throw up his hands and be silent.

A train crawled through the valley. In Assisi it looked an illuminated little toy for children. Here and there patches of gold from the dying sun were playing on the roofs of the houses and in the shifting glow villages appeared neatly arranged, going on a procession. The wind went rustling through the silver of the olive trees. Saint Francis would have said that angels were moving by overhead.

A scarlet flash—and the sun was gone entirely. And while the moon was dying in the groves of the Apennines, bells rang out near by. I climbed down I looked into the doorway of a monkish cell. A man was sitting by the window staring into the valley. I wished I could have stayed with him for a month.

Italians.

Treading my way through this amazing country I have spoken with many people. Among them were charming natures, handsome, fine-faceted patriots, with soft, intelligent eyes, men with gentle, quiet manners, who with exquisite taste and affectionate hearts loved nature, the old masters, flowers, women, books, good food, their country, music. . . . They were conservative liberals. . . . They were men of events, as one expects from members of an ancient race.

Sometimes when you questioned these men you realized a certain enigmatic difference and at the same time you saw that in their eyes there slumbered hidden tragedy. It was as if they, or their ancestors, had experienced a great humiliation, which has seared their proud souls. They were not all fascists by any means. But I found that most of them were capable of real development. I wonder if the intellectual preferences to the duty of discipline which national life imposes on the individual.

One respected Mussolini. They did not all agree with him. But they realized that he had brought the people a vision and a coherent goal. There was everywhere a mighty desire for a real awakening. I wonder if you, northward feeling certain that this noble nation will yet be heard from in art and in the things of the spirit.

Sometimes, in fact, it was as if I could hear the trumpeting of the legions beneath the soil, and rising to the surface.

Rumblings.

Over in Morocco I found things in a desperate plight. The Spanish army is in a pitiful state of degradation. There is, unfortunately, no other word for it. Arms running was going on in all directions. Rumors of the tribes getting ready for a new bid of liberty were flying thick and fast. The authorities seemed incapable or unwilling to do anything about it. A feeling of lassitude and laissez-faire had come over them. This was accentuated by reports of fights and anarchy from Madrid and the great Spanish cities. Pretty nearly everybody in Morocco was convinced that Spain would have to withdraw sooner or later. Probably very soon.

And now here in Italy I hear new rumors. The fascist papers are saying that if Spain withdraws from North Africa, Italy is not going to look on idly while the British step into the Spanish boots. Italy must have her chance at last to extend her North African empire. It will not be the story of Tunis over the sea, which the French took away from under the nose of Italy. Italy wants Spanish Morocco in other words. And herewith the fascist papers are saying that the fascists see themselves already enthroned in Ceuta and Tetuan and the French are equally determined that they will never get near that place.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 30.—The wonders of cinema become daily more amazing. The latest miracle of the sound track will be heard when Lawrence Tibbett's most recent picture, "The Cuban," is released.

The famous Metropolitan baritone sings a duet by himself—a trick possible only in talking pictures. Tibbett sang the number first in baritone range; then in tenor range. The voices were dubbed, as the process of blending tones is called in talking picture making, and the result is a duet—by Tibbett.

So amazing is this artist's range that it would be possible to make a trio with Tibbett singing bass solo. This popular star who is a success in the musical field, a composer, actor and talking pictures—leaves Hollywood now for an extended concert tour and will return to the picture lots only next year when another singing picture will be on the schedule.

Babe Daniels is progressing nicely, but her many friends in the colony are anxious to find the shell of a popular member—feared for her life for several days.

Parties are on in great number for both Arlene Judge and Wesley Ruggles, the director, which more than hints at wedding bells to follow soon on their engagement announcement.

Arline Judge is leading lady in the most recent picture, a story written and directed by herself—a story of the methods and morals of the younger generation.

Tallulah Bankhead comes to Hollywood with a devastating reputation for wit. It has the name of being that cutting kind of humor made famous by Dorothy Parker, the local smart-Alecks are brushing up on their retorts disconcerted.

One of the most amusing stories of Hollywood is told by a veteran Englishman.

ATHLETICS MEET

ST. LOUIS TODAY IN WORLD SERIES

and George Livingston Earnshaw, right-handed hero of the 1930 battle. They won the series last year, have had another great year and are primed to throw "em past the Cardinal sluggers again.

The series schedule offers an opportunity for Mack to play his two aces exclusively in the first two games, in an attempted clean-up, with two days of travel and rest between the second game here and the third contest at Philadelphia next Monday.

He will have the Hot Sox of the southpaw, Rube Walberg, and the young right-hander, Roy Mahaffey, for emergencies.

With Dibs Williams, sensational pitcher, who has been the shortstop, he has clinched by his brilliant work this season, the Athletics will show the first change in the lineup since the series in 1929 and 1930.

Williams replaces the veteran, Joe Boley, who has a bad leg. Otherwise, the Mackmen are in good trim, including the left-handed pitcher, Haas, Fox and Dykes.

The Cardinals, in planning their opening defense behind Derringer and Eubank, have a strong feeling that the second game, base much of their hopes on the fact that the Athletics have seldom found Sportsman's park a happy hunting ground.

The world champions lost two of their three series games here last October. They scored only three runs altogether in these contests, Jimmy Fox's home run being the only decisive blow struck. They were taken over the jumps by the Browns at the local park the past mid-season and it was here that Grove's streak was topped after 16 in a row.

The Cardinals, behind Haines, beat the great Grove in the fourth game of the last series. They are confident of a repeat performance.

The role of Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitballer, in the Cardinal pitching scheme of things is somewhat of a mystery. He was not in the lineup a year ago, dropping two tough decisions to the A's, but he has not done so well lately. He has given way to Tim Lincecum, who has been in the pitching position, but certainly will be summoned if the Cards fail to win behind Derringer and Hallahan.

Summed up, the Cardinals rely on youth and speed, a strong clean defense and the comeback of their clean-up clouters to turn the scales in their favor. The Athletics, shrewdly directed by Mack, expect to win by a strong attack on the pitching of Grove and Earnshaw, plus the big punch of Al Simmons, Jimmy Fox and Mickey Cochrane, back in their places.

Whether in honor of his forty-ninth birthday or not, Manager Street cut short his club's last workout today. It was confined to a brief batting drill and a few fielding exercises. The boys have promised to say it with bases for me tomorrow.

ATLANTA SHOWS RETAIL GAINS

was shown by Lakeland, Fla., with 51.2 per cent in August of this year compared with August, 1930, and Tampa also gained 10.0 per cent.

Atlanta, however, was the only Georgia city to show a gain in building while New Orleans had 10.8 increase. None of the Tennessee reporting cities showed an increase.

Daily average demand deposits held by all federal reserve member banks in the district during August decreased 1.2 per cent from July, 7.1 per cent less than the daily average for August a year ago and was the lowest monthly figure since September, 1929. Total deposits reported at the end of August by 64 selected banks averaged about the same as for July, a gain of 0.1 per cent.

Total volume of reserve bank credit outstanding in the reserve bank here increased in August and on September 9, at approximately $45,500,000, from $44,000,000 on September 2, 1930. Since April 15, when this total was approximately $28,300,000, there has been a gain of more than $17,000,000.

Total discounts increased $5,200,000 from August 12 to September 9, and were only $7,600,000 less than at the same date last year. Deposits increased but reserves declined slightly.

Press reports indicate a slight improvement in the demand for soft pine lumber, which continued throughout August and, although prices are still unsatisfactory, there has been a decided stiffening in some items.

Production of lumber is being held below the volume of orders being currently received and stocks at the mills are being reduced. Orders during the five weeks ending September 5 averaged 14.6 per cent less than a year ago. Production by these mills, averaged 30.8 smaller. For these reporting mills, orders booked during August were approximately 28 per cent greater than production.

M'CARRISON RECOMMENDS VITAMIN A.

Colonel Bonnet McCarrison is recognized as one of the foremost authorities on nutrition. He is director of nutritional research in the Indian Food Research association. In his laboratories at Coonoor, in the Blue mountains of southern India, he maintained a stock of albino rats of which he uses about a thousand a year. The rats are fed on a diet similar to that of certain tribes in northern India, among which tribes are many of the finest physical specimens of mankind. The diet consists of whole wheat flour, unleavened bread lightly spread with fresh butter, legumes, raw carrots, raw cabbage, green raw whole milk, a small ration of raw meat and bones once a week. The rats have no infant mortality and no deaths of adults from natural causes.

Over a thousand rats so fed have lived up to an excellent record, if you know what I mean. If you don't know, it will never bother you. No evidence of disease has been found in them with the sole exception of occasional cysts of the liver containing tapeworm larvae.

Experiments on a large scale have been made, feeding some of these rats on diets similar to the commonly used by some of our Indian peoples—such as cereals and vegetable fats with little or no milk, butter and fresh vegetables. Among these rats, although they were kept under the same hygienic conditions as the others, all kinds of disease occurred, in the ears, in the gastro-intestinal tract; in the reproductive organs; in the skin; in the nervous system; in the heart.

Of all the diets used in these rat feeding experiments, McCarrison found this one, similar to the diet of the Indian peoples, to be the best. The worst: White bread, margarine, tea, sugar, jam, preserved meat, and a scanty allowance of overcooked vegetables. The diet was found to be a staple diet is a little better than that, yet not much better, for a large portion of the population, particularly in industrial and clerical classes in our own cities.

McCarrison has carried out similar experiments with guinea-pigs, rabbits, pigeons and monkeys, and all showed similar results. Guinea-pigs showed duodenal ulcer. Rabbits developed multiple neuritis. Monkeys developed ulcerative colitis. Some of us are like guinea-pigs. Some of us are like monkeys. You economize or limit your choice of foods and take your choices of diseases.

What this great nutrition authority believes that many of the ailments to which man is subject are due to improper feeding, he takes pains to caution that his experiments on animals must not be too rigidly applied to human nutrition.

All the surgical conditions the animals developed on faulty diets are probably due to lack of sufficient Vitamin A. Foods containing considerable Vitamin A—such as raw fresh milk, butter, raw carrots, fresh greens and vegetables and cod liver oil—protected the animals against such diseases. McCarrison particularly recommends Vitamin A foods to prevent ulcerative, middle ear inflammation, duodenal ulcer, goiter and urinary calculi. He believes goiter is due to some deficiency in the diet, but not to iodine deficiency.

limit of 15 checks per month, with three cents to be charged for each additional check. The accounts carry a base charge of $1 monthly.

Accounts averaging between $100 and $200 will have no service charge unless more than five checks are drawn, in which case the service charge will be charged at the rate of three cents. In accounts between $200 and $300 charges will be made only if more than 12 checks are drawn, in which case three cents will be charged for each check above the first eight issued.

In connection with the change, W. B. Spann, president of the Atlanta Clearing House Association, issued the following statement:

"Banks in practically all of the cities throughout the United States the size of Atlanta and in a great many smaller cities, for some time have had in effect what is called a measured service charge on their checking accounts. This measured service charge is based upon the balances carried in each account and the number of checks drawn. It has been found that some of the smallest accounts draw a very large number of checks which entails considerable cost upon the banks in handling them.

"For many years the banks of Atlanta have had a charge of $1 per month for accounts averaging less than $100. The new schedule of charges will be in effect from September 1, 1931, and all accounts averaging more than $300, and all accounts averaging less than $300 are allowed an equitable number of checks to be drawn per month without an 'charge' by the bank.

"If, however, the customer wishes to draw more than the number of free checks allowed, the bank will charge three cents per check for each additional check made. It has been found by banks throughout the country that this is just about the actual cost to the bank of handling these extra checks, and wherever the system of measured service has been adopted, it has met with the approval of the patrons of the banks. Believing that the new plan is fair and reasonable as it entails no extra cost to the customer unless he wishes to use the bank for undue extravagance, the banks of Atlanta are adopting this plan.

"Measured service charge has been in use a long time in payment for the use of electricity, water, gas, etc., and we feel that the customers of Atlanta will find it convenient to only carry such small non-compensating balances will not object to the schedule of charges adopted by the Atlanta Clearing House Association.

"Notices of the new schedule will be placed in each of the customers' statements of October 1. The schedule will be in effect from September 1, 1931, and no charges will be made until December 1."

Culbertson Renews Challenge to Lenz

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(P)—Ely Culbertson, central figure in a controversy that has electrified the bridge world, renewed today his challenge to Sidney S. Lenz to play his "official system" against Culbertson's own—for $10,000 against Lenz's $1,000.

Culbertson previously challenged Lenz to a match for $5,000 to $1,000. The Lenz camp thus far has not accepted.

The challenge calls for a contract bridge match to be played some time between December 1, 1931, and January 15, 1932. Lenz is to choose the venue, the date and the time of the match. Culbertson is to choose the venue, the date and the time of the match.

Culbertson received an ovation of confidence from the crowd at the three-day convention of 200 bridge teachers, exponents of the Culbertson system, and promptly issued the new challenge.

Club Women To Ask Prayer for Prosperity

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 30.—(Special)—Mrs. S. V. Sanford, of Athens, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, will put before the southeastern council at its Thursday session a resolution asking that the prayer of the club women be for the prosperity of the nation.

The prayer will be for the prosperity of the nation, and the club women will ask for a day of prayer, as the crying need of the hour is the injection of more religion into national life.

During the World War when the cause of the allies seemed all but lost, the President called the American people to a day of prayer. His call was heeded, and history records that on that day the affairs of the allies, so dark and dismal, changed to a brighter hue and eventually triumphed with victory.

In the crisis of battle we turned to the Giver of life, happiness and success, and asked for His aid. Surely as we would to the one perfect pattern of character and devotion," says Mrs. Sanford.

The prayer of clubwomen at the council session have been of serious nature, and Mrs. Sanford's plea for a day of prayer will be given under an address entitled: "Are We in Tune With the Times?"

DENTAL COLLEGE TO OPEN TODAY

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

"Oh," he answered, "you can make your name sound mysterious and strange. I'll be kissing you again if you don't look out." He moved away from her. "This must stop," he said savagely. "I ought to be shot for doing what I did."

"I don't know why you should object if I don't."

"I've told you why," he replied sternly. "It can lead to nothing."

"Well, what if it can't? They say it's like a fever. We'll get over it."

"What sort of girl are you, anyway?" Dan burst out. "Are you just playing with me, or what? It is not a thing I can take so lightly. I don't understand you in the least."

Sweet, indeed, Fabia was this protest. His condemnation of her proved the depth of his own feelings. She wanted to cry out, "Oh, kiss me again," but she resisted the temptation. (Oh, if only she could take it lightly! If only it were just a fever! If only she were playing with him!) "Thank you for a wonderful ride!" she said primly, and started to get out.

"It was a failure. I spoiled it."

"No, I spoiled it. I was wanting you to do what you did. I tempted you to do it. But I promise I won't again. I know we can't go on being friends, if that sort of thing happens, and I do want to be friends. Do let's try once again."

"When and where?"

"Well, when do you have to make another call in Newton?"

"Day after tomorrow."

"At the same time?"

"Yes."

He turned to her. His eyes were as brilliant as topazes. "I'll be there at 12 o'clock," he said.

Fabia's heart was beating with high elation as she mounted her grandmother's front stairs. When she opened the door of her room, she was surprised to find Aunt Charlotte. "I heard you come in," she explained. "Mother's lying down, and I thought this a good time to speak to you about last night. I wanted to tell you not to let what mother said about being the vulgar streak in the family bother you. She threatens all of us with it, if we show interest in any one who isn't in the social register. I don't know anything about this Dan Regan. I may be making a lot of trouble—but for goodness' sake, Fabia, make your own decisions."

"Oh, Aunt Charlotte, if you could only know Dan Regan, you'd see he isn't common or vulgar in the least. He's simply splendid! He's going to be Dr. Warburton's successor some day, and one of the leading surgeons in Boston."

"Oh, you're in love with him, are you?"

"Oh, no. I just admire him very much."

"You've just been seeing him, haven't you?" Aunt Charlotte was observing Fabia very closely.

"Yes. I just this minute left him."

"I thought so. Does he love you, too?"

"Oh, no. We're just friends."

"Have you talked with your mother about him?"

"No; I've tried, but I can't somehow. It's so easy to talk to you."

"It's always easy to talk to people whose advice you haven't got to take any notice of. But your mother knows about him now, so you can talk to her tonight. Mother called her up the first thing this morning."

"What did mother say?"

"Made light of it. Didn't let on she didn't know about him."

"Aunt Charlotte, mother puzzles me sometimes."

"I'm not surprised."

"You and she were friends at boarding school. Did she love father awfully when she married him?"

"What do I know about love?" shrugged Aunt Charlotte. "I never had a man even kiss me. No, I never thought Lisa loved Rupert."

"Has mother ever loved anybody else?"

"I wouldn't be surprised, but nobody will ever know."

"Have you suspected she loved somebody else?"

"I say so little and look on so much I see things others don't."

"I've suspected it, too, and it makes me just sick, Aunt Charlotte."

"I don't see why it should. Love can't be helped sometimes. But what

RATLIFF FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER OF WIFE

11-Year-Old Child Chief
Witness Against Father.
Jury Votes Life Imprisonment.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Imprisonment for life was recommended by the jury finding Lee Ratliff guilty of murder of his wife, Mrs. Maggie Ratliff, about two months ago. The jury was out all night and when court reconvened this morning the court was asked for additional instructions regarding the insanity feature injected into the trial.

Ratliff, a white tenant farmer, was estranged from his wife and was sleeping in an outbuilding on the place. During the trial Bernice Ratliff, 11-year-old daughter of the couple, testified that her father killed her mother. While on the stand she was asked: "Where is your mother now?" "She's dead," replied Bernice. "And why is she dead?" "Daddy killed her," said the child. The daughter testified that she heard a noise in her mother's room, went in and struck a light, seeing her father astride her mother, strangling her. The father flung out the match and the girl ran from the room, but returned and made another light. She testified that she did not see another person in the room and did not hear any other about the place. Bernice openly charged her father with the crime as soon as the officers arrived the night of the murder, and she never varied from her story.

Grady Ratliff, a young brother, corroborated many of the essential points in his sister's story.

This is the second conviction for murder in the superior court this week, Laura Inman, negroess, getting a death sentence for killing Frank Williams.

RECEIVER FOR BANK WINS COURT VERDICT

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 30.—A judgment for $4,450 against T. E. Phillips, of Tifton, was entered in the United States district court in favor of W. S. Hatt, receiver for the National Bank of Tifton, which has closed.

Mr. Phillips was a stockholder and director in the bank and was alleged to have only a short time before the bank closed he disposed of a portion of his stock. The receiver declared that the condition of the bank was shaky, claiming also that when he bought most of the stock the bank's condition was as unsound as when he sold, though he did not know it until afterward.

VERDICT OF GUILTY AT ASSAULT TRIAL

The verdict carried a sentence of five to five years on the chain gang. The remaining four defendants are yet to be tried.

WORKER ESCAPES DEATH IN FIVE-STORY FALL

MACON, Ga., Sept. 30.—(AP)—After a plunge from the platform of a construction elevator at the Hotel Denney to the street level five floors below, E. E. Moore, 31-year-old workman, was in "good condition" today and stands a good chance to recover, physicians said at a local hospital.

In view of hundreds of midday shoppers Moore fell down the shaft striking cross-timbers, plunging from side to side, past incomplete windows and finally tumbling in a broken heap at the bottom of the shaft.

Working on the fifth floor, Moore's left foot was caught between the edge of the elevator platform and the framework. The foot was mangled, and the crushing injury it received toppled him from the elevator and sent him flying down the shaft. FEDERAL JURY Laid FOR JUDGE MATHEWS

Central Georgia Jurist Laid to Final Rest With Impressive Ceremony.

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Funeral rites for Judge Henry A. Mathews, died Sept. 19, began this morning at the Macon judicial circuit, and a life-long resident of this place, were held here today in the First Methodist church. Interment was in Oak Lawn cemetery.

During the service, all business houses in the city were closed. Likewise, all county offices in Houston, Crawford and Bibb counties closed while the officers and members of the bars attended the funeral service.

Rev. N. H. Williams, leading the congregation, opened the service with an old hymn, a favorite of Judge Mathews, "How Firm a Foundation." Rev. Mr. Williams then read the church ritual.

A short tribute by Rev. T. H. Thompson, of Dawson, former pastor of the church, was followed by a trio number, "In the Garden," sung by Mrs. R. M. Houser, Henry Branham and Howard Branham.

Besides two sons, Judge Mathews was survived by his widow, one sister, Mrs. Helen Wright, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Active pallbearers were George Mathews, George Wright, Alex Mathews, Miller Mathews, W. M. Wright and Russell Branham, all nephews of Judge Mathews.

There was an honorary escort from the Macon Bar Association, as follows: Judge Malcolm D. Jones, Judge Charles H. Hall, Judge Bascom S. Deaver, Judge Hugh Chambers, Judge Walter C. Stevens, Solicitor General H. Garrett, Vivian H. Roberts, clerk superior court; Judge Charles L. Bartlett, Sheriff James R. Hicks Jr., Mr. Carlisle Miller, W. C. Burton Jr., president of the bar association in Macon, and J. Douglas Carlisle, president of the Macon Lawyers' Club, and General Valter A. Harris.

PROFESSOR HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Court Orders Further Investigation Into Drowning of Mrs. Kane.

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Elisha Kane III, University of Tennessee professor, was held for the grand jury today at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing on a charge of drowning his wife, Jenny Graham Kane, in Chesapeake bay last month.

Magistrate J. E. Dixon, of Elizabeth City county, decided to send the case on to the grand jury, after he had heard 20 minutes of argument summing up the testimony given by the father, mother and brother of Mrs. Kane and seven other witnesses. No witnesses were offered by the defense.

The regular Elizabeth City county grand jury meets here Monday, October 5.

Kane heard his wife's father and mother testify that their daughter seemed to dread the swimming party on Grand View beach from which she never returned alive. Mrs. W. C. Graham, mother of the dead woman, gave way to hysterics and was sobbing from the courtroom after answering four questions. There was no opportunity for cross-examination.

"She told me her husband wanted to go to the beach to swim and she looked at me with appealing eyes that seemed to say, don't let me go or go with me," Mrs. Graham sobbed just before she was removed from the stand. "They went and my darling daughter never came back alive."

Coroner George K. Vandervelde testified that information given him by "Hop" Graham, a brother of Mrs. Kane, about letters from "another woman" and domestic differences of the Kanes caused him to change a verdict of accidental drowning to murder. He said members of the family had destroyed the letters except for one in his possession signed "Betty."

But Betty, identified as Mrs. E. H. Dahl, of Mount Holly, N. J., was not present today and counsel said she was not expected.

During the afternoon the state brought forward a number of fishermen who claim to have witnessed the drowning. They testified to seeing two persons splashing in the water and hearing screams, "at first playful and later distressing."

M. J. Firman said his father, in the boat with him, said "You're going to hear from those screams." Commonwealth's Attorney Roland Cook asked the Elderly man what kind of screams he heard and the 72-year-old man said they were "Oh, oh, oh." He said the screams "made me nervous, but I could not see the people."

First Testimony.

Mrs. Graham's testimony, the first she has given publicly, came after a long examination of the coroner as to information on which he based his verdict.

"When did Professor Kane come to your house?" Mrs. Graham was asked by Frank Kearney, prosecution attorney.

"On the Wednesday before my daughter died," she said faintly.

"Mrs. Graham tell what you can about what happened the day of the drowning."

"My son and my husband got up early and I gave them breakfast. After they had gone I went to tell Jenny and her husband to come to breakfast and I found them sitting on the bed, neither talking. I told Professor Kane to come to breakfast but he did not reply or move to come. I told Jenny to slip on her robe and come with him."

"Jenny came down and told me her husband wanted her to go to the beach to swim. She started toward the sun parlor and she turned and looked at me with appealing eyes that seemed to say don't let me go or go with me. They went and my darling daughter never came back alive."

Physician Called.

A physician was called as Mrs. Graham gave way to her sobs, and she was aided in leaving the courtroom.

W. C. Graham, father of Mrs. Kane, came on the stand immediately afterward.

"Jenny certainly did not want to leave the house that morning," he said. "I could tell by her actions and expression that she had a fear or dread of something."

Graham was questioned closely as to whether Kane told him he was "on shore" or "off shore" at the time of the drowning. He insisted it was "on shore," which was in contradiction of Kane's story of the drowning.

The professor paid close attention to the testimony during the day and from time to time made suggestions to his attorneys. R. K. Kane Jr., his cousin, took over the cross-examination.

Aged Woman Walks Many Miles To Do Her Bit for Penny Club

She had passed many milestones in her life; more than the three score and ten. Prosperity had ceased to smile upon her, but there was a happy smile on her face and her eyes twinkled as she handed her three pennies to Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn at the Penny Club headquarters Wednesday.

"It's a long walk down here, but I'll be glad to walk this far every day to bring you the three pennies," she told Mrs. Glenn. "I haven't much, but I do manage three meals a day and have figured out where I can afford three cents a day. I'll bring them down every day."

Overwhelmed by the old lady's philanthropic act, her unselfish thought of others, Mrs. Glenn could not for a moment summon the words to tell her that she could drop the three pennies into any one of the boxes at the Penny Club boxes about town and they would be delivered to headquarters just the same as though she had brought them there.

Assuring Mrs. Glenn that she would drop the pennies in a box near her home she departed, saying that the Penny Club could count on her for three cents from now until March.

The idea of the Penny Club appeals to all in all walks of life, from the old lady in the December of her life down through the great span of years to school children. Here is an example of the response of a little girl.

Mrs. Glenn said, displaying a letter from C. A. Rauschenberg, Atlanta insurance man.

Members of the Rauschenberg household don't get a bite to eat until they have all contributed their pennies.

Georgia, age 10, the youngest daughter and treasurer of the Penny Club in the Rauschenberg home, sees to that.

"During the past week Georgia has passed her cup around the table bringing me five (5) pennies without contributing One Penny Club box about town and they would be delivered to headquarters just the same as though she had brought them there."

Assuring Mrs. Glenn that she would drop the pennies in a box near her home she departed, saying that the Penny Club could count on her for three cents from now until March.

Oil Company To Give Employees Afternoon Off To Attend Fair

Setting an example which officials of the fair expressed the hope every other large employer would follow, Wiley L. Moore, president of the Wolford Oil Company, Wednesday announced that every Atlanta employee of his company would be given an afternoon off in order to attend the Southeastern fair which opens Saturday to continue through the following October 10.

In addition Mr. Moore addressed a letter to all of his numerous employees over the state urging them if their business will permit, to arrange to attend the fair.

Lee Ashcraft, president of the fair association, declared Mr. Moore's action "a fine example of the business men of Atlanta and a concrete and definite contribution to the success of the Southeastern Fair."

"I feel sure," said Mr. Ashcraft, "that other large employers will follow the example of Mr. Moore. He is showing a splendid spirit of co-operation and his is a definite contribution to the success of the fair."

Wherever it is possible for business concerns to grant employees a half-holiday to attend the fair, I earnestly hope they will do so. Mr. Moore also deserves our thanks for his letters to employees over the state."

Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. Wednesday issued a proclamation making Wednesday, October 7, a half-holiday at the capitol so that state employees working in the building would be given an opportunity of attending the fair.

Earlier in the day Mayor James L. Key also had named Wednesday as a half-holiday so that city employees could attend the fair that afternoon.

Additional details of plans for entertainment at the fair on special days were submitted to the executive council of the fair association by the fair committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a meeting Wednesday noon.

Tom Cornell, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce committee in charge of the opening day parade, announced that all plans for the parade have been completed and up to noon Wednesday all entries for the parade had been received. Among the more pretentious entries in the parade will be the U. D. C., the Atlanta Woman's Club, the American Legion drum corps and the Cudahy Packing Company. Mystery veils the entry of the White Provision Company, a float in no being prepared, Cornell said.

Judges appointed by President Ashcraft to review the parade as it passes, given the line of the march and select what they believe is the best one are: C. Arthur Kitchens, first vice president of the fair association; Ivan Allen, member of the executive council; Nell R. Wilkinson, chairman of the finance committee; R. S. Barker, corporation secretary, and Colonel Frederic J. Pax.

SENATE SHORT SELLING

Senate Republican Leader Warns Exchange Bears May Be Investigated.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Convinced that "bear raids" on the stock markets are a contributing factor to the depression, Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, warned the stock exchange today that it faced investigation of these practices.

Senator Watson speaks with considerable authority in the administration and his warning that "a thorough and searching investigation of this method of dealing with stocks will be made by a senate committee" was regarded as significant.

This practice of selling securities in the market for the purpose of raising profits has been a subject of complaint for some time. It was yesterday drew a ban from one stock exchange firm in New York, which announced it would refuse to loan money for this purpose in the future.

"The whole industrial and commercial world," said Senator Watson, "seems to be under the spell of the stock market and New York city seems to be dazed by the results of these transactions. It is the belief of many that we shall not recover from our present depression until transactions of this kind are either prohibited or greatly curtailed or properly safeguarded in the public interest."

"Many senators are of the belief that brokerage houses should not be permitted to lend the securities of their customers unless they are expressly ordered to do so by them or their consent is obtained for that purpose. They are of the opinion that an order of this kind by the stock exchange itself would be salutary at a time like this, or failing in that, that some legislation might be enacted that would compel the adoption of such a course."

"They further believe that all short transactions should be thrown open to the public; that the lights of day should be permitted to shine in upon all of their details; that the names of the individuals and the brokerage houses should be made public; that the stocks dealt in should be made known and that all the details of each transaction should be subject to public scrutiny."

"After much study of the present situation in the country, these gentlemen believe that the adoption of these precautionary measures would be sufficient to stop the evils of short selling and at the same time preserve what is left of the stock market."

"I have no doubt that one or more resolutions of this kind will be passed by the senate soon to meet, and that a thorough and searching investigation of this method of dealing with stocks will be made by a senate committee."

NOTED ECONOMISTS WILL CONFER HERE

Economists and tax officials from various sections of the United States, including G. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, and Harley L. Lutz, director of the New Jersey commission for investigation of taxes, and the man who was engaged to make a study of the Georgia tax situation recently, will attend the twenty-fourth annual conference on taxes, which will be held here October 12-16.

The conference will be under the auspices of the National Tax Association. Dykstra is regarded as one of the foremost economic experts in the United States. Since taking over the reins of the Cincinnati municipal government he has evoked the interest of many leading American cities because of the progressive strides made in the government of that city.

Mr. Lutz's recommendation regarding the Georgia method of taxation was the cause of widespread discussion and legislative controversy during the recent special and regular sessions of the general assembly. Both men will speak during the conference, following which general discussions by other experts will feature sessions of the gathering.

The sessions will open Monday night, October 12, and for the ensuing five days meetings will be held morning, afternoon and night. Headquarters of the conference will be at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. A recreation and entertainment program will be observed during the afternoon of October 15.

INGRAM TO 'SWAP' AUTOS FOR COTTON

Inaugurating a combined policy of business stimulation and of aid to farmers, Robert Ingram, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau, announced Wednesday that his company would accept cotton from individual farmers at 2 cents above the market price as part or full payment on new or used cars.

Ordinarily at this time of the year, it was pointed out by officials of the company, farmers buy heavily in both new and used cars from cotton sales revenue. They believe that the cotton offer will stimulate activity among the smaller growers, and enable many, who otherwise would be forced to do without, to have a new car.

Classes will begin in earnest tonight when the subjects of corporations, with William E. Arnold, and bailments and carriers, by Chancery Middlebrooks, will be taken up.

Agnes Scott Freshmen In 'Rat Week' Torment

Sophomores at Agnes Scott are racking their brains this week devising new methods of torment for freshmen. It's "rat week" at the Decatur college, and the freshmen tremble at the thought of an upper-classman. They have to make up the beds of the second-year students, wash out their silk hose, and obey the older students implicitly. Little yellow caps adorn the heads of the first-year girls.

When a freshman meets a sophomore on the campus this week she bows to the ground. In the madhouse of the second-year students, who every freshman knows by heart: "O lordly lord! This lousy loach-legged loon lauds thee."

Objects and Aims of Dual Drive Are Explained by T. K. Glenn

Objectives and methods of Atlanta's campaign for funds for human relief, to be undertaken next month, were explained Wednesday by Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the emergency relief committee, which has joined forces with the Community Chest for the campaign.

This union of objectives was made necessary, Mr. Glenn said, by a condition of widespread need which is without precedent in the community's experience and which requires far more than any previous budget.

"The Chest and the emergency relief committee are working together in this campaign, as they have worked together all this year, with the object of mobilizing every facility for welfare work and financial support under a single banner," said Mr. Glenn.

"This union of forces is the most sensible arrangement. It prevents duplication and overlapping of effort. It conserves money and energy. It increases the effectiveness of both the Chest and the emergency committee. It does not mean that either has fallen short of its mission. The emergency relief committee has been utilizing the Chest welfare agencies for distribution of its relief funds and efforts ever since the emergency began. Because the emergency has been so acute, and the need in our community so widespread—far beyond that contemplated in the preparation of previous budgets of the Chest agencies—every resource of both the Chest and the emergency committee has been called upon.

"One of these without the other would have been overburdened and swamped. Neither could have carried the load alone—and without a generous and general response by the public to the present appeal, both together will be unable to carry on the necessary work of relief completely and effectively."

"This is so because the need is truly appalling. Nothing like it has ever been seen here before. Another reason for the merger of forces in this campaign is the policy urged by the national groups in charge of unemployment relief programs to utilize established and efficient local agencies in every case, rather than to set up new organizations."

"The combined campaign is the logical and economical thing. Response to its appeal is urged of every man and woman."

First stages of the campaign will begin October 3 when the workers of the industrial group begin a canvass of 206 business houses and industrial plants. The canvass of individuals, in which every man and woman will be given opportunity to aid, will begin October 18.

Only twice in history, said the statement of the minister of justice, both times within the last decade, has the pope consented to removal of a cardinal-primate of any country. Those instances were the removal of Cardinal

Yillot in France and Cardinal Huin in Czechoslovakia.

If the papacy continued "a thorough understanding of all the problems," the statement said, "Spanish Catholicism would be raised to planes of modernity exemplified by Catholics in the United States and Belgium."

Papal Nuncio Tedeschini said Cardinal Segura renounced his post voluntarily, without intervention from the Vatican, to avoid possible complications in the church and state controversy. He said the cardinal would await an assignment by the Holy See.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The announcement in Madrid that the Vatican has agreed to retire Cardinal Segura y Saenz as primate of Spain caused no surprise here, but official confirmation could not be obtained because of the absence of state department chiefs.

Coming as a surprise to the wide circle of friends throughout the south was the marriage of Miss Georgia May Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George William Little, Dr. Arthur Neal Owens, of Baltimore, Md., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Owens, of Heflin, Ala. The wedding was solemnized quietly yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 728 Myrtle street, in the presence of the immediate families. Dr. Luther R. Christie, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, read the marriage service.

Early fall flowers decorated the spacious reception rooms of the home. The bride was given in marriage by her father, G. W. Little, and Frank Owens, of Heflin, Ala., brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Miss Elizabeth Owens, of Heflin, Ala., sister of the bridegroom, rendered the nuptial music.

The bride was lovely wearing a smart traveling costume of green wool combined with brown satin, a replica of a Schiaparelli. Fashioned at a two-piece model, the skirt and jacket were of lightweight green wool, with the blouse of rich brown satin. The coat featured a brown satin skirt that looped in a casual tie in front.

A mound of lilacs of the valley and pink roses formed an artistic centerpiece for the tea table and above the table was suspended a dainty pink umbrella showered with pink ribbons. When the ribbons were pulled the gifts fell in a veritable shower upon the attractive young bride-elect. The guests included only members of the bridal party and those assisting at the reception.

Miss Sara Ison entertained yesterday at a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue honoring Miss Candler. Fall flowers were used throughout the reception rooms. Mrs. Sippel Addresses Council On Women Facing World Problems

BY BESSIE S. STAFFORD,
Editor of Georgia Federation's Official Club Page in The Constitution.

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 30.—Recognizing the keen desire of organized women to help in a peace emergency as well as a war emergency, Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, Md., president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, called upon 15,000 units composing the General Federation to stand squarely behind the nation-wide Community Chest Movement. She delivered her illuminating and forceful address today on "Women's Share in Meeting the Problems Facing the World Today" in the central clubhouse, before delegates attending the southeastern council in convention assembled in Dalton. She laid special stress on the importance of raising funds through community chests to meet the unemployment situation.

As adversity brings people closer together and philanthropic service has always been the backbone of club work, and as one of the reasons for the existence of the General Federation is the betterment of the community and the care of its own needy, her appeal will be heeded by two million women.

Food Conservation.—Mrs. Sippel placed emphasis on the conservation of food, and this is her plan. If every home in the United States would use one day to can for the needy, nobody would go hungry in this land of plenty. It would offer an excellent chance for city clubs to furnish the cheap surplus foods to be canned by home demonstration clubs, thereby bringing about fine co-operation. She brought forward the importance of avoiding putting the canning campaign in competition with commercial canning, and to avoid encouraging women to can surplus foods, without planning a way to collect and distribute that food where it is needed. She illustrated her remarks by telling of home demonstration club in Arkansas that has put aside every 13th can the entire club has canned this year. Those 13th cans are for the needy in other communities and states this winter.

Unemployment Relief.—The food problem of this nation would be solved if the unemployed were to be given a day to can for the needy and unemployed, stated Mrs. Sippel. "Has there ever been greater need for rural co-operation? Without this glorious 1931 crop what would this old world do for food, clothing, fuel, shelter and employment? These are the essentials that human life demands," said Mrs. Sippel. She believes that if every county in the United States would do its best to take care of its needy and provide employment for its own unemployed, most of the suffering would be avoided, save in the larger cities. Hundreds of thousands of people would not then be forced into cities to look hopelessly for a job.

loan committee of clubs composing General Federation, and that the regulations be administered as leisurely as seems wise in the judgment of the committee. This period of enforced leisure for many adults could be used advantageously by some of them as a time to carry forward studies interrupted before graduation, or to undergo some specific training helpful in securing a livelihood. In many states, regulations stipulate that loans are to be made for undergraduate work and if, in the worst of cases, loans could be made for graduate work great good would result.

Mrs. Sippel unhesitatingly stated that as great a responsibility rested upon clubwomen in meeting their share of the economic problems facing the world today, as during the period of the World War. Mrs. Sippel's well modulated and musical southern voice gave additional appeal to her stirring address.

As chairman of the biennial committee of General Federation of Women's Clubs, which recently issued a pamphlet linking the name of George Washington and President Hoover, the program being built on the similarity of mind and purpose of those two presidents and designed for use on club programs connected with the centennial celebration of George Washington's birthday, Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, Md., president of the general federation, said that the pamphlet was composed and published to bring to the attention of new citizens the ideals which have governed the nation throughout its history up to the present time, and to set before them the privileges and responsibilities which come to those accepting citizenship.

In her talk Wednesday morning, she stated that it has been said that this pamphlet had partisan politics injected into its composition, something completely foreign to the intent and purposes of the pamphlet. The committee's general federation has never gone into partisan political activities, and she stated that she brought requesting that clubwomen value and use their vote according to their belief. Clubwomen are concentrating on constructive work and forgetting destructive criticism in their desire to be of assistance in the big program of helping in this period of economic maladjustment.

Mrs. Sippel brought forward the fact that faith in one another would do more to stabilize the country than any single individual influence at present. She closed her remarks with the statement that "whispering campaigns have caused runs on banks, and lack of faith in one another has crushed ideals."

Mrs. Sippel is a democrat and comes of a long line of democrats, being the ninth generation in Maryland. Executive board of Maryland federation recently went on record to exclude from its Washington biennial program, this pamphlet, issued by the biennial committee, of which Mrs. Sippel is chairman, while Mrs. Grace M. Poole and Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, co-operating with Mrs. John C. Pearson, compose the committee.

Mrs. Sippel, in her plea for further economic adjustment, says that the first step in getting a picture of conditions affecting the relationship of the woman purchaser to retailing and production is to issue the following questionnaire to clubwomen:

1. In what items are you delaying purchase, expecting lower prices?
2. In what items are you delaying purchase in local stores because you find stock depleted?
3. Are your local stores keeping you in touch with new merchandise and new uses for merchandise by advertising?

4. Does your local advertising give incentive to immediate buying through (a) low price appeal, (b) figures showing prices are lowest, (c) "help-and-depression" appeal?
5. Are you helping to maintain personnel and wages in your locality by wise buying?

6. Do reports of your local committee and your local employment bureau show recent layoffs? To what extent are you responsible?
7. Could you use pamphlets on stabilizing employment (a) in the industrial field, (b) in the retail field? How many?

Miss Tommie Dora Barker, of Atlanta, regional field agent for the Southern American Library Association, said the library is one agency whose business has not suffered from the depression. The experience of all libraries has been that during times of enforced leisure and unemployment, people have flocked to the reading rooms as never before. It has not been simply a matter of reading for pastime but they have been seeking books that will help them to prepare for a new job or to help them better qualify to hold the one they have.

"Important aid can be rendered libraries by clubwomen in helping them to get needed support to carry on the work, and in using the strength of their organized effort to keep the pruning knife from being applied by public officials to library budgets which are already too small for the demands to be met. It speaks well for the growing recognition of the value of libraries that in states where legislatures met in the past year, 15 state library extension agencies had increased in their appropriations, five received the same amount and only in four instances were there decreases in appropriations."

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads
There is one simple, safe and sure way to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this, get two ounces of Calamine Powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Little blackheads, no matter where they are, are simply dissolved and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The Calamine Powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—Leda.

HIGHLIGHTS OF FEDERATION IN DALTON

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 30.—(Special).—Clubwomen donned their stylish Empress Eugenie hats and new fall dresses to attend the luncheon given at Dalton Woman's Club to delegates attending the council, and were transported in motor cars to the former home of the beloved poet, Robert Loveman, which has been bought for a clubhouse, and where the burning of the notes of indebtedness took place with auspicious ceremony. The crisp autumn weather has added greatly to the spirits and pleasure of the visitors. Dalton citizens are lending every effort to contribute to the success of the convention and to the comfort of the delegates.

An interesting delegate is Judge Fannibel Sutherland, of Paris, Ky., president of the Kentucky federation since last May. Her tenure of office as judge of the city court expired last January after she had served for a period of six years. She was an ardent clubwoman before being elected to the bench, and it was because of her interest in clubwork that she gained through contact in her club work, that she won the confidence of the people who voted her in office.

The delegation is ably headed by Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president of General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Sippel is a delegate from the southeastern council; Mrs. Julian G. FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

What do you think of a girl who comes out of school herself and goes to work to make it possible for her boy friend to go to college? In the instances of this sort with which I am familiar the wife never gets due respect and devotion. Don't you think it best for a man to suggest out his educational situation and not depend on a woman to do it for him? It is dangerous for a woman to place a man under moral obligation to her for the chances are that she will find another whom his education would make a better life companion. Don't you think, too, that this plan would tend to make a man weak and dependent?

ANSWER:

I'll even go further and say that there is something radically wrong with a boy, or a man, who would let a girl give up her chance at a college education to secure him. Such a man would likely fail to recognize, or be bound by, any obligation. There is such a thing as the law of good taste. It forbids men to take money from women, unless they are married to them, or kin to them. Even then the law may be modified but it may not be abrogated. A man with the proper moral and social sense knows instinctively that it is indecent and that it is against the dictates of good taste for him to allow a woman who has no money but what she earns, and no more education than he has, to work in order to give him advantages which she would like herself.

A woman must be very careful about what she does in the first exuberant joy of love. Because love suggests sacrifices and renunciation for the benefit of the loved one many a woman gets off to a bad start and spends all of life regretting it. Men are as easily spoiled by sweethearts as babies are by mothers. The woman naturally sets the pace in a courtship and the man holds her to it during marriage. If a woman assumes that the best of everything, including the biggest part of the budget, is to be spent for the man's education, she may be sure he will always maintain that ratio. If a woman assumes the responsibility that should rightfully belong to the man, she may rest assured that he will let her have it, for the rest of their lives.

We always lose what we do not use. It is equally true of muscles and morals. A man who is relieved of the necessity of seeing to his own education when he is young, will not likely assume the responsibility of the education of his children when he is older. A man who allows his fiancée to get to work to furnish him ease and leisure for study, will allow his wife to do even more (provided he marries that one). The chances are that he will recognize no obligation to her, and if "in the course of human events" he sees a woman he likes better she has nothing for her pains and her sacrifice but self-reproaches and for her folly nothing but bitter regret.

The other day I heard a mother correct her son of eight for borrowing ten cents from his sister. Said she: "Daughter, if you want to borrow from your brother that is one thing, but I don't want him to borrow from you." I thought her very wise.

THE SECRET IS OUT

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

In truth there's nothing that is queer. When understood all things are clear.—Old Mother Nature.

It is lack of knowledge and understanding that makes things seem queer sometimes. Really they are not queer at all. The only queerest about them is the fact that we are so often blind to the truth.

When a little roundish gray stone on top of a rock in front of him suddenly came to life and scampered over to another rock, understanding came to Farmer Brown's Boy in a flash. "So you were one of those barkers I have been trying to see!" he exclaimed under his breath that his voice might not be heard. "Here I have sat looking right at you and mistaking you for a stone. That is why it seemed as if the stones themselves must be barking. I wonder how many more like you I have failed to see. Certainly there must be a lot more to judge by the different directions in which I have heard that barking. You are so near the color of the stones and you sat so still you looked to me to be a stone."

Meanwhile the barking continued all around him. It seemed as if there must be at least a dozen little barkers hidden among the rocks. In the light of his present knowledge he carefully studied the rocks again, but not another barker could he locate. Then he turned his attention to his little neighbor on the rock, for he didn't want to lose sight of him. He saw a small mouth open and he heard that funny bark, but strange to say the sound didn't seem to come from that rock at all. Neither did it seem to come from as near as that. The same thing happened over again. He saw that little mouth open and he heard the bark, but the latter seemed to come from another direction altogether.

Once more understanding came to Farmer Brown's Boy and the secret of that barking all around him was out. "I do believe you are a ventriloquist. You may not know you are doing it, but you throw your voice so that it seems to come from anywhere but where it really does come from," said he. "That must fool your enemies a lot of times just as it fooled me. Perhaps there are not as many others around here as I thought must be the case. I know who you are now. You are Little Chief Hare the Pike whom some folks call Cony, and I certainly am tickled to see you. I hope you Don't be too hushful. I want to know you a lot better. I wish you would tell me how many more Pikas there are on the rock slide. Of course Little Chief did nothing of the kind. As a matter of fact, there was but one other, and that was Mrs. Little Chief, who was barking from a hiding place down among the rocks. All those voices Farmer Brown's Boy had thought he heard were but two, Little Chief's and Mrs. Little Chief's. Farmer Brown's Boy had begun to suspect this now, but, of course, he wasn't sure.

Little Chief Hare, to give him his full name, although he is not a Hare at all, was about the size of one of Peter Rabbit's babies when they first begin to hop about in the dear Old Briar-patch. He had round ears instead of long ones and seemed to have no tail. His legs were short. But as he sat there on a rock he looked very much like a small Rabbit. Seeing him for the first time you might have mistaken him for a young Rabbit.

His home is among the rocks, for there only does he feel safe. Being such a little fellow he never lacks for a place to hide among the rocks and stones of the slide. The same enemies that Whistler the Marmot must watch out for always have their eyes open for Little Chief, so it is no wonder that he is a timid little chap. Not for one minute would he have sat there on that rock had he suspected the presence of Farmer Brown's Boy. Now he was joined by Mrs. Little Chief and for a time there was no more barking. It was then that Farmer Brown's Boy decided that they had been responsible for all that barking. (Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Give Adversaries Credit for an Assist

100

The recriminations at the Contract table vividly prove that average defensive play leaves something to be desired. However, sometimes the defending partner, should not blame each other too greatly for failing to find the road of safe defense through the maze with which they are confronted. A strong player always capitalizes the mistakes of his opponents and sometimes these mistakes do not need to be very glaring ones to permit accurate play and correct planning of the hand to reap a reward not apparent on the face of the cards.

The hand below was played by Mrs. William E. Zontlein, of New York, former co-holder with Mrs. H. L. Peterson of the Women's Contract Pair Championship of the United States.

North and South vulnerable. East and West not vulnerable.

♠	9 4 2	♥	10	♦	10 8 5 2	♣	Q 4
♠	A K Q 10 6	♥	9 8 7 6	♦	7 3	♣	A 5 3
♠	10	♥	K	♦	6 3	♣	Q 4
♠	9 8 7 6	♥	J 10 8 7	♦	5 4	♣	A 9 6 5 3
♠	8 5	♥	A K Q 4 2	♦	A Q J 7 4	♣	K 3

The Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	1♥	Pass	2♠(1)
2♥	2♠(2)	3♥	3♠
Pass	4♠(3)	Pass	Pass

1—East's trump support of his partner's Overcall bid is not quite adequate. However, his hand contains 2 honor-tricks and support for the spades if West is strong enough to rebid.

2—West rebids because of additional strength in the trump suit. The scoring situation is also a possible factor in the bid. The hand may prove difficult to manage, however, due to the length in diamonds already bid by South.

3—West's four spade bid is made without much hope of fulfilling the contract, but with fair assurance that any loss on the hand will be offset by the honor holding, as partner has made a bid and supported the spades also.

In the play, North opened the diamond King which held the trick. He could then defeat the contract by shifting to trumps or clubs, but feared that this play might endanger a possible trump trick in the South hand. Therefore, on his second round of play he elected to lead a heart. This was won with the Ace in Dummy and the remaining diamond was led and won by South. West had already formed a plan of campaign and North's defensive error on the second trick provided the opportunity for its accomplishment. When South won the diamond and North failed to follow suit, he appreciated the danger and led a trump which was won by the Declarer in the closed hand, who led the third round of diamonds which Dummy trumped with the seven. The Declarer then trumped a heart in the closed hand led the fourth diamond, which was trumped with Dummy's last trump. The last heart was led from the Dummy and trumped by the Declarer, who laid down the Ace and King of trumps. South meanwhile was distinctly uncomfortable. On the last round of trumps he was forced to discard. To discard the Ace of diamonds would be to establish the ten in the Declarer's hand. To discard a club appeared equally dangerous, as thereby West could make 2 tricks in clubs if the original holding in the closed hand was the Queen and one. Therefore, South was forced to discard the King of hearts. On the next round of play, West led the Ten of diamonds and South won with the Ace, but was compelled to concede the twelfth and thirteenth tricks to the Declarer. West thus made four spades, losing only 3 diamond tricks in the hand. A very slight mistake in defensive play had been accurately capitalized to make the contract.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Notrump should be the final declaration only after all major suit possibilities are eliminated and when the combined honor strength does not justify expectation of game at a minor suit bid. An ideal notrump is a fairly solid minor suit, an Ace on the side and enough stoppers in suits held by the opponents to prevent them from running such suits.

PARK LAND VALUED AT $15.89 AN ACRE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 30.—(AP)—D. C. Chapman, chairman of the Tennessee park commission, said today he was advised from Asheville, N. C., that a commission of condemnation placed a value of $15.89 an acre on the holdings of the Sun-crest Lumber Company in the Great Smoky mountains national park area in North Carolina.

The price was fixed today after the commission had heard testimony for nearly three weeks.

Chapman said the land under condemnation by the North Carolina state park commission totals 32,853 acres, being comprised largely of virgin timber.

MEXICAN EXPEDITION ROUTED BY NATIVES

PUEBLA, Mexico, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A government archeological expedition exploring the pyramid of Cholula was put to rout yesterday by Indians. The archeologists were permitted to leave in peace after complying with the natives' demands to cease tunneling the pyramid and they reported the case today to the state government. The Indians have a superstitious objection to penetration of the pyramid.

Tech Line Shows Best Form of Season in Long Scrimmage GROVE FACES DERRINGER IN OPENER TO DAY

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 30.—(Special.)—Ted Twomey, the new tackle coach at Georgia, is the new eating champion of Athens, having defeated Mr. Rex Enright, the backfield coach, in a championship match at catch weights, no fork holds barred.

Mr. Twomey becomes the all-time champion by his defeat of Enright, who had won the title which Frank Thomas left vacant when he went to Alabama as head coach. Enright had proved to be Thomas' equal. The victory of Ted Twomey is generally conceded to be on the up and up.

"I am sure that the gamblers failed to influence any one of the contestants," said Mr. Harry Mehre, "and I know that the Costa brothers, who promoted, were on the level and did not make Mr. Enright's food any heavier. In other words, the plates were served all even."

The contest was held last night at a dinner given by the Costa brothers. An elimination tournament, which had been in progress all fall, had narrowed the field to Rex Enright and Twomey.

Harry Mehre put up a game struggle. Weems Baskin and Chick Shiver made a gallant effort. In the end, however, Twomey and Enright remained.

The result was something of a surprise. Rex Enright was a 6 to 5 favorite before the contest started, having been a steady and consistent eater all fall, while Twomey at times showed indecision when second steaks were passed. Enright, however, had taken second steaks right in stride, and was therefore a favorite.

There was quite a little betting on the result, two or three bookies getting down heavy sugar on Enright. And so today the backfield coach is a bit disappointed.

THE CONTEST ITSELF.

The contest was held at the Costa dining room. Spaghetti, with side dishes of ravioli, was brought on first.

Mr. Enright breezed right through his first plate of spaghetti, beating Twomey by a yard and a half on the last forkful. This caused Mr. Enright's supporters to nudge one another, and exchange assurances that the contest was as good as in the bag.

They finished even on the side dishes of ravioli. The second plate of spaghetti was brought in and this time Mr. Twomey finished two yards in front of Mr. Enright. They again tied on the side dish of ravioli.

This caused some momentary alarm, but Mr. Enright still appeared strong. The more confident got down some more wagers.

The third dish of ravioli saw Mr. Enright slow up a bit, being two forkfuls behind.

This caused slight alarm, as the opinion was that Enright was merely staying a bit behind, so as to put on speed at the finish and pass Ted Twomey on the last lap of dessert.

With the spaghetti course out of the way, new dishes of ravioli and meat balls were brought on.

When each of the contestants had finished the third meat ball and the fourth dish of ravioli, it was to be seen that Rex Enright, the one-time champion of North Carolina, was weakening. In fact, there was some hint that Mr. Enright, as a champion, was just a hollow shell.

This was disputed as it was argued that no one who had eaten as much as Mr. Enright could possibly be a hollow shell.

THE CONTEST AS GOOD AS OVER.

Both contestants went right on through the meat ball rounds until each had consumed eight. By this time Mr. Enright's eyes had begun to look glazed.

"I am afraid he can't take it in the body as well as we thought," said Harry Mehre, who was one of the original Enright men.

The contest was as good as over when Twomey nonchalantly reached out, speared the ninth meat ball, and finished it off. With those rounds out of the way it was just a question of time until a new champion was to be crowned.

The roast chicken, dressing and cranberry sauce came next, together with a few vegetables. Mr. Enright was obviously punch-drunk from the spaghetti, and even the casual observers could tell that the meat balls had softened him up to where he could not meet the chicken at all.

He tried gamely, however, and there was no question about his throwing the match. He punished two orders of chicken in half-hearted fashion, while Twomey was still going strong.

The match was about over by now. Some of the tender-hearted about the board were thinking of stopping the battle by tossing in Mr. Enright's napkin, but he waved them aside and went on.

THE KNOCKOUT PUNCH.

The knockout came in the last round, when the pie course came on. Mr. Enright wavered. He swayed in his chair. He peered through half-shut eyes, and finally took the pie. He ate half way through. By this time Twomey had finished his second piece of pie, and was ready for ice cream.

It was then that Mr. Enright's seconds tossed in the napkin, and the greatest eating contest ever staged in Athens in the Costa arena was over.

Just to show that there were no hard feelings, the two contestants were observed eating a sandwich together an hour or so after the match.

The Costa brothers are now trying to arrange a contest between Josh Cody, assistant coach at Vanderbilt; Ted Twomey and a newspaperman, who is also quite an eater-up.

As soon as the Costa brothers can get in touch with an extra packing house and a spaghetti broker, the match will be held.

TECH LINE DOES BRILLIANT WORK IN LONG SESSION

Neblett, Laws and Jones
Lead in Smearing Gamecock Plays.

By Jimmy Jones.

The Yellow Jackets got their first swipe at South Carolina plays yesterday. The plays were offered for inspection by the Grey Devils and the varsity line managed to step in and smash quite a few of them.

The three ring-leaders in the smashing were Monk Neblett, the slender but hard-boiled center; Casey Jones, the right tackle, and the tubby Eddie Laws, the right guard.

Proof that Jack Cannon has done a bang-up job of early line coaching appeared in the work of Laws and Jones. Both newcomers to their positions, they broke through and nailed runners like old hands at the art. In fact, Laws and Jones and Neblett seemed to be in every play, and frequently they gummed it up before it had even a chance to get going.

Neblett, playing roving center behind the six-man line, seemed to have an uncanny knack of knowing where the plays were headed. Jones, a hard working youngster who bids fair of becoming one of the best tackles in the conference, likewise played a hard, smashing game, and Laws displayed the best work he has done all fall in submerging under the Grey Devil line and throwing backs for losses.

LINE LOOKS GREAT.

Of course, the Gamecock offense, with Clary leading along behind those off-tackle sweeps like a Mexican jumping bean, will present a different version of those plays, which the Grey Devils copied in two days, but, take it from the opinion of the spectators, that Tech line was looking mighty good in these yesterday.

Coch Alex will not have the heavy line he has had in the past years, but he will be able to place one on the field with an average of about 185 pounds, which is heavy enough for a well-coached set of forwards who are fast and alert on the charge.

The Tech coach alternated his forwards in these yesterday; but the line with Neblett at center; Branch and Laws at guards; Jones and Bob Tharpe at tackles, and Luckey and Sid Williams at ends, looked best.

IS FRESH.

The Grey Devils were not as fresh when they were in there, because they had been subjected to the usual drab existence of Grey Devils for most of the afternoon, but, their fighting and had been reinforced by fresh men.

Charles (Chick) Galloway, the loose-jointed, muscular sophomore from South Carolina (Mr. Clary's own region) sifted through the Grey Devil defense for several beautiful runs, including one long dash for a touchdown. In fact, it seems that in Galloway, Tech will present a fair rival for Clary's acclaim Saturday at Grand field. Galloway not only follows his interference well, but is fast and is a good side-stepper to boot. The boy, who weighs around 165, also can kick acceptably and pass. If he is not in the Tech's starting lineup Saturday, he is very likely to get in there before long.

DAVIS SCORES.

"Wink" Davis, the elusive little fellow, also got through for a touchdown run, as did Pat Barron. The last backfield to see service against the Grey Devils was composed of Peterson, Hart, Davis and Galloway.

McArthur, Milligan, Barron and Cherry had been used previously. The bulk of the kicking may fall on McArthur and Galloway in Saturday's game. Sid Williams also can punt. McArthur is certain to start at quarter back for his experience and ability to pass as well as kick.

SCRIMMAGE TODAY.

More scrimmaging is in order today, while Friday will see the usual taping off.

Mack Tharpe, line coach, leaves this morning for Pittsburgh to scout Carnegie Tech, the Jackets' second opponent.

Backfield Coach Bobby Dodd was out yesterday, looking somewhat pale after a series of operations.

Junior High Students Invited to Game.

Professor A. H. Armstrong, faculty chairman of athletics at Georgia Tech, last night announced that letters had been mailed to all principals of junior high schools in Atlanta, inviting them and their entire student bodies to be guests of the Tech Athletic Association at Saturday's game between the Jackets and South Carolina.

They will enter by the north stand and their tickets will be available today at Professor Armstrong's office.

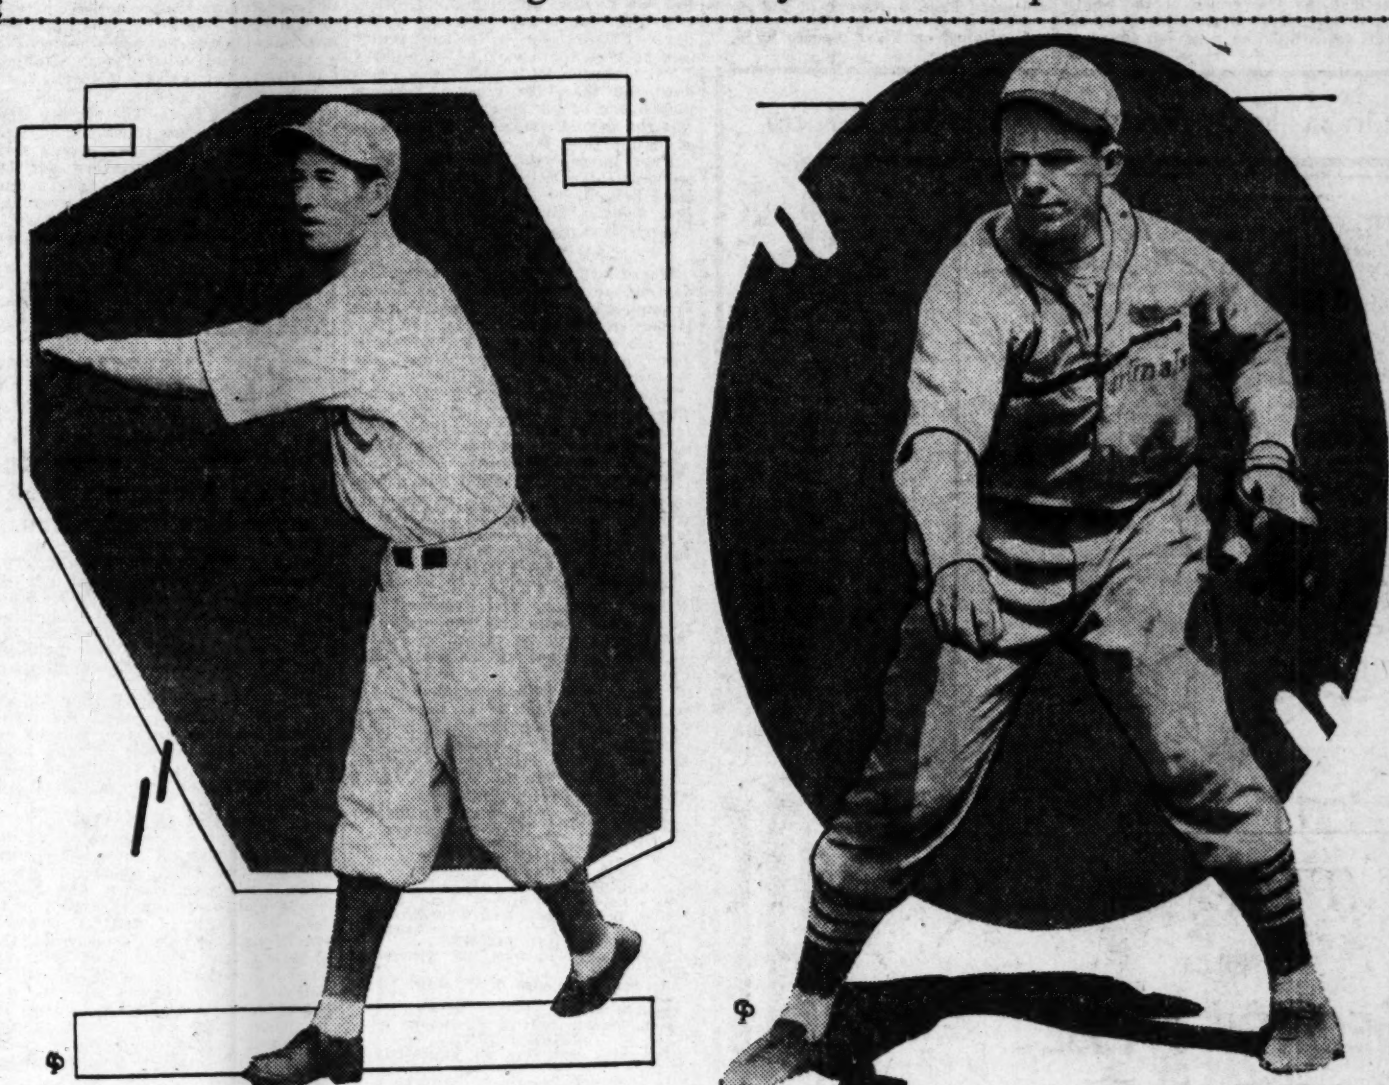

The student bodies of Agnes Scott, Woodbury Hall, Washington Seminary and North Avenue Presbyterian Girls' school, also have been invited and they will occupy the south stand. Letters to their presidents were mailed out yesterday.

For the next game here, all the high school and prep school students of the city will be guests of Tech.

Poloists Resume Title Match Sunday

Fort McPherson and the Governor's Horse Guards will play the fifth game of their city championship polo series at the local foot Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Horse Guard was badly off form last Sunday and lost to the army team, 10-3, thereby evening the series at two wins each. The teams are practicing regularly this week in preparation for Sunday's game and each expects to be in excellent condition for the contest. The regular lineups will be started.

ALEXA REACHES QUARTER-FINALS

Mrs. Fraser Plays Enid
Wilson, British Champion, at Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Four players from the United States, two from Canada and two from Great Britain marched into the quarter-final round of the Canadian women's golf championship today with only a few traces of real competition.

At the end of the second round of match play, the defending champion, Maureen O'Connell, of England, N. J.; Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago; Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, and Marion Hollins, of Santa Cruz, Cal., were left to carry on the United States' half of the battle for the title and the Duchess of Connaught cup.

Enid Wilson, the British champion, and Marjorie Kerr represented England; and Miss Alex Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, and Marjorie Kirkham, of Montreal, Canadian closed champion, carried on for Canada.

Miss O'Connell today at the expense of Mrs. Harley C. Higbie, of Detroit, winning 6 up and 5 to play. The veteran Mrs. Hill downed another Detroit, Mrs. John Arends, 7 and 5. Miss Hollins eliminated Mrs. E. W. Whittington, of Toronto, 3 and 2. The closest match of the day came when Miss Van Wie downed Miss Mackenzie, holder of many Canadian titles, 1 up in 19 holes.

The British entries disposed of two rivals from the United States without much trouble. Miss Wilson defeated Mary K. Browne, of Cleveland, former top ranking tennis and golf star, 5 and 3. The British champion turned in the best performance of the day when she went out in 36, two below par. Miss Kerr established a big lead on the first nine, and won 19 and 1.

Mrs. Fraser, former United States champion, defeated Mrs. S. G. Bennett, of New York, 7 and 5, while Miss Kirkham won from Mrs. Arthur Harrison, of Buffalo, 2 and 1. The schedule for tomorrow pairs off the four United States contestants, and sends the two English girls against the Canadian survivors. The pairings follow: Miss O'Connell vs. Miss Hollins; Mrs. Hill vs. Miss Van Wie; Miss Kirkham vs. Miss Kerr; Miss Wilson vs. Mrs. Fraser.

Alumni To Honor Gamecock Players

Members of the Atlanta chapter of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association will entertain members of the South Carolina football squad at a dinner at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night, following the team's game with Tech.

Mr. Blackmon's telephone number is Jackson 2716. South Carolinians may obtain tickets in the Gamecock section for the game at the Tech Athletic Association on North avenue.

Other new officers of the Atlanta chapter are Joe Wheeler, vice president, and R. M. Lupo, secretary and treasurer.

Cardinals Improved And Will Win--Frisch

Team Better Balanced and Faster Afoot--Six or Seven-Game Series Predicted.

By Frankie Frisch,

Captain and Second Baseman of St. Louis Cardinals.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.) ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—The Cardinals will win this world series in six or seven games. The Athletics beat us last year in six starts, but I believe we will turn the tables on them this time.

I base my confidence on the marked improvement of the Cardinals since 1930. The National league race showed plainly how we improved, for we had this year's pennant pretty well sewed up for almost two months. Last season, coming from far behind, we did not clinch the title until the last few days.

I believe we have one of the best balanced clubs of all time. There's not a weak cog in the machine, and this Cardinal team really is a machine. It came so when Sparky Adams developed into one of the game's best third basemen to round out our infield, and when Pepper Martin met immediate success in Taylor Douthett's old place, center field. Martin added terrific speed to our team already gifted with extraordinary agility. I think we have more really fast men than any other club. There is speed in every position. Catchers are supposed not to be fast of foot, for some reason, but Jimmy Wilson, ace of the Cardinals' fielding staff, is one of the best base runners in the National league. Jim was a star soccer professional once.

Speed enabled us to take advantage of the "deadened" National league ball. Both National and American league baseballs were produced with raised seams this year to help the pitchers, but the National ball had a thicker cover, and believe me, the pitchers made good use of the help given them. Although the Cardinals fell off in batting, as did all the other clubs, we had so much speed that we were able in great measure to counterbalance what we lost in hitting.

Just run through our lineup. Hafey and Watkins flanking Martin in the outfield, with Roettger, Orsatti and Blades as reserve. Both National and American league players are good, but Adams and Yours Truly in the infield, backed up by Collins, Flowers and High. Add Wilson's fast pedals, and you realize why we lead the National league in stolen bases and are Continued on Second Sports Page.

SHIKAT BEATS DON DELAUN

German Wins in Straight
Falls; Williams Throws
Tony Catalino.

Richard Shikat, the German oak, took little more than a half hour to toss the ponderous Don DeLaun, of Canada, to the mat twice and then to the floor in the third round.

Mingled boos and applause followed the catlike movements of Shikat throughout the bout. The German, however, paid little attention to the crowd and went about beating DeLaun's defense in a very workmanlike manner. He also gave several displays of science and strength that brought cheers from the crowd.

Shikat won the first fall in 35 minutes and 15 seconds with a body slam and body block. He took the second fall in 20 minutes and 45 seconds, and the third in 4 minutes 55 seconds. The German, who appeared to be in great shape, was obviously the superior wrestler and handled DeLaun with the utmost facility.

In the semi-final, Cy Williams, former University of Florida football tackle, scored a one-fall victory over Tony Catalino, a 200-pound Italian. Catalino seemed to know more about the game than the collegian and it was only after a tough battle that Williams won the first fall in 20 minutes.

Catalino suffered a fractured rib, however, and doctors advised against his return to action.

It was the first indoor show of the fall season and the crowd was estimated at around 3,500.

Londos Recognized As World's Champion.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The championship committee of the National Wrestling Association at a meeting here today recognized Jim Londos, of St. Louis, as world's heavyweight wrestling champion and ordered him to post $5,000 forfeit within ten days to meet within six months any one of 20 "logical contenders" named by the committee.

Londos will be required to meet the contender selected by the committee at a time and place named by the committee and under its conditions and supervision.

Wrestlers on the eligible list are Richard Shikat, Everett Marshall, Ray Steel, Don George, Ed Lewis, Rudy Duncak, Gus Sonnenberg, Wladek Zyzsko, Pat O'Shocker, George Calza, Henri De Glane, John Peck, Jim Millen, Hans Steink, Jack Sherry, Karl Fojello, Kola Kwariani, Hans Kämpfer, John Evko and Milo Stebborn.

The National Wrestling Association is an offshoot of the National Boxing Association and was formed a year ago when the boxing organization decided to have nothing more to do with wrestling. Its membership now includes 16 states—Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio, Mississippi, Indiana, Tennessee, Louisiana, Missouri, Michigan, Connecticut, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas and Oregon. Karl D. Malone, of Louisville, Ky., is chairman of the championship committee.

The committee also named champions in three other weight divisions. They are: Lightweight, Hugh Nichols; welterweight, Jack Reynolds; and middleweight, Gus Kallio.

CAPACITY CROWD TO PACK STANDS THIS AFTERNOON

Athletics Favored Over
Cards; St. Louis Fans
Wild on Eve.

By Grantland Rice.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.) ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 30.—With a somewhat tawdry collection of only three victories in the last 10 World Series games, these winging Cardinals of St. Louis are all steamed up to swing the tide in the new war that opens tomorrow and bring the old circuit back to the top.

And the Cardinals have a wild-eyed city back of them in their deserving endeavor, a city that believes Derringer, Grimes and Hallahan are a match for Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg; and that Hafey, Bottomley and Frisch can swing bats with Simmons, Cochrane and Fox.

I have never seen the National league as wrought up as it was today with the first game of the series at hand. The older league has taken a heavy beating for four successive years, but at last it has a ball club that carries the faith of a city that can lug as much noise into one ball park as any set of rooters that ever lived.

They may take their baseball with a certain amount of serenity and calmness in the east, but not in this excited citadel of swat, where the human throat can expand to a remarkable degree and leave the air with the racket of 40,000 sets of lungs. A capacity crowd will jam the park tomorrow.

CARD INJURIES.

The Cardinals suffered something of a shock in the injuries that struck at Haines, Adams and Martin, three valuable assets. But they have a lot of star pitching left and a strong reserve line which should plug up every open gap.

With Derringer, Grimes and Hallahan, three fine pitchers all groomed for the next week or ten days, Cardinal supporters have full faith in their pitching staff where the main element of doubt is getting into the groove and Earnshaw. The big thing in this series seems to be that first game—the game tomorrow for which Derringer and Grimes are elected in advance to handle the pitching, as they are the two leading pitching aces of their clubs. I asked Bill Klein, the famous National league umpire, what he thought of Derringer, the Cardinal giant.

"I've worked a lot of games back of this young fellow," said Klein, "and in my opinion he is one of the best pitchers I ever saw. He is big and strong, with a lot of speed, a fine curve and high-class control. But what I like most about him is his coolness under fire. He is all ice, no matter how hot the situation may be. He has the heart and the brains and he certainly has the nerve to back up his claims."

GREAT PITCHERS.

Even up to the first pitched ball the entire dope on this series favors the pitching. It is doubtful if six great pitchers ever met in a series. Greater than the sextet which Mack and Street can throw into action. Against this there are only two or three high-class hitters on each team with Al Simmons the outstanding star.

But even up to the start of the first game, even with the wild Missouri war cry ringing in your ears, the odds still rest with a team that has Grove and Cochrane for a battery with Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx poised with their bats.

With most of the advance evidence in the indications still point to a domination of brilliant pitching where even the best hitters will have their trouble day by day.

WONT LAST LONG.

When you make a statement of this sort an old-fashioned stadium match usually breaks out to show the perversion of human nature.

But if it should break out it won't last any too long. Both pitching stars are in great shape. Derringer is ready to go the route and so is Grove.

And while the National league more than keeps up the American league charge, don't overlook the fact that a young fellow by the name of Connie Mack is extremely keen to win three world's championships in row and set a new record which will be broken while you are still alive. What happens after that will be of no great consequence to us wherever we happen to be.

A'S ARE CONFIDENT.

I have talked with Eddie Collins and Kid Gleason, of the Mack advisory board, and they are as confident as they were against the Cubs in 1929 and the Cardinals in 1930. They expect Grove to continue to go great work and Big Earnshaw to bear down again as he did last year.

"I told you, Mickey Cochrane remarked, 'that Earnshaw is a different pitcher in a series of this Continued on Second Sports Page."

Atlanta's annual fall Junior Chamber of Commerce golf tournament entered the semi-final round Wednesday with no upsets to mark the first round, on the No. 2 East Lake Country Club course. Three of the matches continued on the 18th green.

Richard Hickey, co-medalist with Forrest Fowler, defeated J. M. Vickery, 7-6, the largest margin of the day. Fowler, due to a spectacular comeback on the back nine, eliminated T. L. Johnson, 2-1. He was two down at the 13th green. Johnson played one of his best rounds, and it was the second time that he has scored better than 90.

Pete Barnes, the defending champion, defeated Gilbert Ashe, 2-1, and Mike Benton, one of the Junior Chamber veteran first-flighters, defeated Russell Bridges, 2 up.

FINAL FLY.
Finals in all flights will be played Friday morning, and trophies and prizes to winners and runners-up in each flight will be presented Friday night at a dance at the East Lake Country Club.

sort. He may not pitch his arm off through a season when he does not need to, but watch him again with a real ball club. We are not taking this series lightly. We know we have a real ball club to beat. But we happen to have a type of ball club that is not only good for a pennant race, but even better for a short series where good pitching and timely batting tell the story.

Whatever happens, St. Louis is churning into a froth. The purring Mississippi river seems to be full of ripples from the citywide excitement that prevails. For they figure here that the Athletics are about due to take one on the chin before this program is over and they also figure the Cardinals are the people who can deliver the punch.

SHIRES SNUBBED BY CINCINNATI

Reds Take Manion Instead; Kingdon, Newsome, Knothe Drafted.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(P)—The Cincinnati Nationals tonight drafted Clyde Manion, promising catcher from the Milwaukee club of the American association, at the opening of the draft meeting, presided over by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

Under the rules, C. Arthur Shires, the self-confessed great man and Milwaukee first baseman, will be retained by the Brewers or later sold, as the rules prohibit drafting of more than one player from a Class AA or Class A team.

DRAFT IS SMALL.
Only 15 players were drafted, the smallest number in years. The reason for the small number, it was understood, was because the major league club owners were beginning to feel the pinch of general business conditions, and also because of the increased draft prices. Under the revised agreements it costs $7,500 to draft a player from a Class AA league and $6,000 from Class A leagues. Only three clubs in the American league, the White Sox, Browns and Yankees, took advantage of the draft.

The Boston Braves led the clubs in drafting, acquiring four players, including Leo Mangum, a right-handed pitcher from Newark. The Braves selected Dave Barber, of the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast league, who batted out 46 home runs this season in an emergency.

The list of players drafted follows: American league—White Sox, Carey Selph, Houston, Texas; St. Louis Browns, George Knothe, St. Paul; St. Louis Cardinals, George Knothe, St. Paul; St. Louis Cardinals, George Knothe, St. Paul; St. Louis Cardinals, George Knothe, St. Paul.

BRVES GET BETTS.
National league—Cincinnati, Clyde Manion, from the Milwaukee club of the American association; Boston, Walter Betts, right-handed pitcher of St. Paul, of the American association; Philadelphia, George Knothe, catcher from the Chattanooga club of the Southern association; New York Yankees, Frank Nekola, a right-handed pitcher from Jersey City of the International league.

Willie was back at his job at Oak Ridge the following Monday morning. But an exhibition tour netting $250 a day was immediately arranged. The new open champion started out on this cross-country money-making exhibition. In about ten days he was back at his club again with all future exhibition dates cancelled. Willie was a job handler, not a showman.

The Man Who Beat Bobby Jones.
Then there is Willie MacFarlane, one of the best golfers in the game. MacFarlane has been the golf professional at the Oak Ridge Club, Westchester club, New York, for a long time. In 1925, at Westchester he defeated Bobby Jones for the golf championship of the United States.

Jack Quinn of the Dodgers, is another striking example of the job handler. Quinn had been pitching professional ball since 1904 and he was close to 50 when he came to the Dodgers this spring. But instead of breaking up he began to pitch better than he had pitched in years.

Here was the king of the veterans, still on his job. And suddenly Jack Quinn began to get at last the recognition of the fans. A home crowd would be roaring against the Dodgers and rooting for the home team when in some emergency old man Quinn would appear on the mound. At this point the crowd would be roaring and pay Quinn a rousing tribute. And the startled veteran would wonder what it was all about. The showman of sport has his place. But so has the effective competitor who can handle his job without any particular magnetic appeal to the populace at large. And quite often he is better off than the other when both hit the sunset trail.

ORIOLES RETURN.
BALTIMORE, Sept. 30.—(P)—The Baltimore Orioles, of the International league, will return to Guilford, Miss., next spring for their early training. George Weiss, manager, announced today.

Cards Are Taking No Chances at All.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(P)—Paul Derringer, 25-year-old pitcher, "freshman" who will start the world series for the Cardinals tomorrow, observed an ancient and superstitious baseball custom today by refusing to be photographed while working out at Sportman's park.

On the same ground, that it's bad luck to be photographed before a big battle, Manager Gabby Street declined to collect his athletes for a group picture.

THE SPORTLIGHT

Job Handler vs. Showman.

There are two breeds in sport who ride the crest of the game. One is the showman type, the colorful personality which the present age has become accustomed to look for. In a sense the public has been spoiled in this respect, for in the last ten years it has known a Jack Dempsey, a Babe Ruth, a Bobby Jones, a Bill Tilden and a Johnny Weissmuller, to mention a few.

The fact that a competitor might have skill, ability and a type of quiet courage without any great crowd appeal has been overlooked. Yet this more recent type, which you might call the "job handler," is always right on top of the job.

George Burns, of the Giants, is an example. George was a great outfielder, a great ball player. But he was a quiet, modest, unassuming type who made hard plays look easy and who never received the credit he deserved.

Two recent samples of the job handler are Max Schmeling, the heavyweight boxing champion, and Billy Burke, the open golf champion. Neither is a showman. They are both painstaking, hard-working, careful, conscientious job handlers.

A Contrast in Baseball.
To illustrate the contrast, suppose we consider two left-handers from baseball: Rube Waddell, from the old Athletics, and Bob Grove, from the present Athletics.

Waddell was one of the greatest showmen in the game. And it was a natural gift. He might jump his team for a fishing trip or he might have a few days off or he might be calling in his out-field as he struck out the side. But he was always a story.

Bob Grove, who this season hung up 31 victories against four defeats, was 25 years old before he moved from Baltimore to the Athletics camp. Then it took him two years to hit his true stride, in spite of blinding speed and the old pop combined.

In 1928 this tall left-hander finally battled his way through the Milwaukee club of the American association, at the opening of the draft meeting, presided over by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

Under the rules, C. Arthur Shires, the self-confessed great man and Milwaukee first baseman, will be retained by the Brewers or later sold, as the rules prohibit drafting of more than one player from a Class AA or Class A team.

PLAYER SPIRIT TO DETERMINE SERIES RESULT

National League Head Expects Redbirds To Fight From Start.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor. ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(P)—Defensive baseball won't beat the world's champion Athletics in the forthcoming championship conflict, in the opinion of John Arnold Heydler, chief executive of the National league.

"The Cardinals must play aggressive, hard fighting baseball from the outset, if they expect to stop Connie Mack's team," Heydler declared on his arrival today with an official party to witness the opening of the world series Thursday.

"It is up to our club to force the fight. The Cardinals start the series on their own grounds, with the National league ball. If this is an advantage to them, they should make the most of it."

NO PREDICTION.
"I have no prediction to make as to the outcome. The Cardinals are a good team. They are well rested for the series. They will be handicapped if Haines is unable to pitch at all, but the club has good reserve strength. It has shown it can hustle under Street's leadership, and I expect it to start the series in an aggressive frame of mind."

After four years of world series famine for the National league, Heydler feels it up to his circuit's representative to "fight the good fight," win or lose.

"The Cardinals gave a good account of themselves last year," continued Heydler. "Until Fox's home run in the fifth game, it was a toss-up. 'JUMP' IMPORTANT."

"The experience, plus the improvement of our championship club, should be manifest in making this a close contest. It will mean much to whichever team gets the jump."

"The Athletics not only have a powerful club but exceptional advancement in making this a close contest. It will mean much to whichever team gets the jump."

"Street, in a short space of time, has achieved fine results. He has a seasoned field leader in Frank Frisch. 'In the final analysis, however, the result will be determined by the spirit of the players on the field. If the Cardinals go into the series on their toes, determined to force the opportunity and play real offensive baseball, they have a good chance to win.'"

Mehre, However, Pessimistic Over Outcome of Five Games.

By Ralph McGill.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 30.—Austin Downes, captain and quarterback of the Georgia Bulldogs, appeared in the scrimmage today for the first time this season. His appearance was the tonic the Bulldogs have needed and they turned in what was easily the best workout of the year.

It is a magnificent-looking squad that Harry Mehre and his assistants are developing. They are devoting a tremendous amount of work to the team this fall. Georgia coaches always work hard. This fall they are outdoing themselves.

They had a schedule that appears almost impossible but they have a great deal and a great chance.

TEAM STRONGER.

One afternoon of peering at the Georgia squad by one who watched them carefully last fall, indicates that the Bulldogs are stronger than last season.

There are a number of backfield reserves on hand that were not present in 1930. And the line has as much reserve strength. Added to that is the extra coaching by Ted Twomey, who is drilling the tackles, the weak spot in 1930.

Georgia is stronger than in 1930. Harry Mehre, who is more pessimistic than the late Heri Schopenhauer, who was pessimistic to a fault.

A GOOD TEAM.

"I think we have a good team, yes," said Harry Mehre. "But I don't know if it is good enough to go through the schedule we have. It will take a great team to do that."

Meanwhile Harry Mehre is busy with his football team. Injuries to Stoinoff and Gilmore, the substitute fullbacks, have caused the switching of Jodie Whire, the full-footed back, from halfback to fullback.

It was intended as a temporary measure, but Whire may stay there. If not he may be changed to halfback. Much depends on his punting. If Mehre had time and enough games to waste he would try Whire as a punter.

Whire kicks well in practice and no doubt would in games if he had one or two to experiment in. If Whire gets a little experience he will probably be in the regular lineup.

REGULAR LINE-UP.

The regular line-up is being used in workouts. It includes the old reliable quartet in the backfield with Downes at quarter, Dickens and Chandler at halfbacks and Roberts at full.

Weddington Kelly is likely to draw the starting job at end left vacated by the graduation of Herb Moffett. Wolfson and Crenshaw are also out for the job, but the latter is hurt.

Hamrick and Rose will be the tackles with Maddox and Leathers as guards.

Graham Bachelor, the sophomore center, will be at that position Saturday when the Bulldogs come to Athens.

Mehre is going to start his first team. The Georgia coach is not going to take any chances with the Gobblers. "You remember the old saying, 'Stage fears Purdie,'" said Mehre. "That's me."

Mehre refuses to subscribe to any idea that the Bulldogs are favorites to romp through to a title. He insists that at least five games on the schedule are doubtful.

V. P. I. Leaves Today For Georgia Game.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Sept. 30.—Set for a determined thrust at Georgia's goal line, Virginia Poly prepared for its final home practice today before leaving tonight for Athens to battle the Bulldogs Saturday.

It is not how to stop Georgia but how to do some serious work of their own that will drive the team down the home stretch of preparations at a fast pace.

Coach Neal drilled two teams hard until dark yesterday perfecting new plays to be hurled at Mehre's defense.

He stressed the passing game and plans to resort to it if Georgia's heavier forwards halt his running attack.

Twenty-eight players, including nine backs and 19 linemen will make the trip. Coach Neal plans to send against Georgia an eleven composed of eight veterans and three sophomores, averaging about 190 pounds in the line and 175 in the backfield.

SET-UP DAY FOR FOOTBALL.

The first Saturday of the football season always is known as "set-up" day. The season proper opens next Saturday. This year's set-up day ran true to schedule with few exceptions, the most notable one being in the far west, where Little St. Mary's College beat the University of Southern California in a spectacular game.

But then that was not regarded as much of a set-up game. Little St. Mary's College is little no longer. With the Rockne system, Rockne coaches and a Notre Dame urge for producing football teams, Little St. Mary's, which used to produce nothing but baseball players a short time back out of a small enrollment, now is producing football teams which compare favorably with any.

Still, Mr. Howard Jones, brother of Tad, who is coaching Southern California, confidently expected that his Trojans would overwhelm little St. Mary's. Mr. Jones will have the consolation, if he can find any consolation for the moment, in knowing that he has worked out one of the theories of Mr. Robert Zuppke, artist-writer-coach, of Illinois. Mr. Zuppke has put it down in black and white that it is best for a football team to start with a real game instead of a set-up. This, Mr. Zuppke maintains, is better preparation and tends to stiffen the morale of the team for the season. So the morale of Southern California should be fine for the rest of the season. Mr. Jones' team certainly opened the season with a real test—regardless of the fact that the test worked the wrong way.

But in other sections of the country, notably the immediate vicinity, set-up day ran quite true to form. At Columbia crushed Middlebury by 61 to 0 and that New York University routed Harvard by 35 to 0. Georgia's set-up was not quite so soft, or the men of Fortham are taking it easy, for they left their set-up. Thiel, with only a 28-to-0 set-up.

DURHAM AWAITS BATTLE OF LINES.

Both Duke and V. M. I. Have Strong Forward Walls.

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 30.—Those coiling linemen, who usually do most of the work and get most of the credit, are expected to steal the show from the backs when Duke and V. M. I. meet in the homecoming day clash here Saturday.

Both teams are depending on their lines heavily, and records for the season show that the forwards have been doing most of the work for both teams thus far. The Duke line has not been scored on in two games, the only touchdown against V. M. I. being the result of an intercepted pass.

Duke's forwards were the whole show in the South Carolina game, holding the heavier Gamecocks throughout three periods. They looked bad only on the run made by the elusive Clary for a touchdown.

The members of the Flying Squadron line are all veterans with the exception of one tackle, Charlie Straub, a fighting sophomore. The other tackle berth is occupied by Bill Kaylor, a senior, and the center is Monty Rea, letterman, and the guards are Ed Kostinsek and Landon Hilliard, both vets. Ranny Gregory and Captain Johnnie Gill are experienced ends.

Few shifts are expected in the line crew that played for Duke against South Carolina. Three ends, Hyatt, Corbin and Friedman; two centers, Harton, Bryan and Friedman; and three guards, Werner, Carpenter and Daugherty, are alternating at those positions. Adkins is a fixture at center.

The Cadet backfield will outwith the Devils with Bill Smith, quarterback; Jack Lavender and Tucker Watkins, husky halfbacks; and Buck Wright, hard-hitting fullback.

Four Grid Players Draw Suspension.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 30.—Four Birmingham-Southern football players were suspended today following a meeting of the faculty of the institution for "extreme breach of college discipline."

The suspended players are: Loy Vaughan, of Jasper, co-captain and quarterback; Harold James, of Birmingham, end; J. T. Hand, of Dothan, tackle; and Milner Doster, of Dothan, substitute quarterback. All were on the varsity squad.

The nature of the charges against the students was not made public by Dr. Guy E. Snavely, president of the college, who announced the faculty action. The charges were investigated by four faculty members and the representative of the athletic department.

BEER AND FOOTBALL.

Princeton has dropped five players for breaking training rules. It seemed that the athletes, reared by preliminary practice, dropped into Trenton and quaffed a little beer, which might or might not have been needed. Being New Jersey beer it probably was needed.

Of course, this was a gross breach of training rules and it is not to be condoned. "Discipline," as Sergeant Bagstock said, "must be maintained." But I understand that certain articles of diet are verboten to football players in training, as well as all beverages containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol by volume.

For instance, I believe that pie is prohibited absolutely. I am wondering what would have happened if these athletes had been caught in some speakeasy bakery, eating some bootleg pie. I do not think that they would have been dropped from the squad entirely for this offense, though it would be against training rules. It strikes me that the Princeton authorities might let the beer drinkers off with the maximum penalty for eating pie.

I am not offering any suggestion that would embarrass discipline at Princeton. Far from it. My motives are purely Gillestian in this and in every other matter of the sort, "to let punishment fit the crime."

When the rowing teams of Oxford and Cambridge are in training they are forbidden to drink anything but ale. There may have been cases where an English oarsman was found guilty of breaking training rules by drinking water but as far as I know there never was any extreme penalty for the first offense of this nature.

DUDLEY WINS.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Ed Dudley, of Concord, Pa., and Wilmington, Del., western open champion, added another golf title to his list today, tied a 6 and 5 victory over Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, in the Philadelphia professionals match play.

Hap Blair hit safely in 28 consecutive games with Johnson and then was released for light stickwork.

GRIDIRON MOVIES MAY CAUSE CUT IN LYMPIC LIST

Eligibility of Amateur Athletes Appearing in Pictures Uncertain.

By Duane Hennessy.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Many of the nation's leading amateur athletes have been at work, with pay in football movies this summer and fall.

Officials of the Olympic games organizing committee here said tonight that they did not know what the rules were concerning amateurs who capitalized upon their athletic ability in the films.

Twenty-six members of the University of Southern California football squad worked in pictures before school resumed. One still was working this week.

Herman Brix, graduate of the University of Washington, and counted upon by the United States to win points in the weight events of the next Olympics, started to work in the movie "Touchdown" but was forced to withdraw when he suffered an injury while working on the picture.

A C. L. A. FILM "STARS."

Eleven members of the University of California at Los Angeles football team worked in football films this summer. Loyola University, coached by Tom Ivin, former assistant to Knute Rockne, also supplied players for picture work.

The Pacific coast conference stand in the work was known by Professor W. B. Owens, of Stanford, president of the conference, as follows:

The conference passed a rule at its last meeting in June permitting undergraduate football players to work in the movies under the classification of extra at a salary not to exceed $10 a day.

Most extras received only $5 or $7.50. The $10 salary places the football players in the class of skilled labor, probably taking cognizance of their suitability for use in football scenes.

Many motion picture studios have been careful not to advertise the presence of the players in the pictures, as this is forbidden by the conference. In the Brix incident, he is a graduate and not under conference jurisdiction. If his eligibility is questioned, the Olympic game eligibility committee must rule. However, he was billed as a member of the cast and his name came to public attention.

FOUR HORSEMEN.

Many famous players are appearing in the several pictures. Among them are the long-to-be-remembered four horsemen of Notre Dame. They are appearing in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," "The Spirit of Notre Dame," "The Spirit of Notre Dame," and "The Spirit of Notre Dame."

Others who have worked in pictures include:

Former Notre Dame Men—Frank Cardo, Elmer Layden, Don Miller, Jim Crowley, Harry Stuhldreher, Bob Weir, John L. Buckley, O'Connor, Moon Mullins, John O'Brien, Art McManis, Al Howard, Other Former Stars—Morley Drury, Russ Saunders, Nate Barringer, Hibbs, Dale Van Syckle (replaced Brix), Roy Riegels, Manfred Zeile, Cecil Huff, Harry Edelson, Tom Lieb, Jim Thorpe.

George Lott Wins In Coast Tourney.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Proving entirely too strong for his younger opponent, George Lott, of Philadelphia, defeated Edmund Levy, of San Francisco, 6-2, 7-5, in the final round of Pacific coast men's singles championship today. Lott is the defending titleholder.

Amer. Nat. Assn. of Oakland, first ranking national player for 1930, disposed of Florence Maxwell, San Francisco, 6-1, 6-1, in a quarter-final match. Lott's singles opponent, Gerald Stratford, San Francisco youth, eliminated the British Davis cup player, G. P. Hughes, seeded No. 8, by scores of 6-3, 1-6, 6-3.

Frederick Perry, British Davis cup star, defeated Lauriston Driscoll, San Francisco, in straight sets by scores of 6-4, 6-4.

NOT DECIDED.

The Cardinals have not decided on a 1932 spring training camp and may possibly switch from Florida to California.

N. C. STATE.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Coach Clippert Smith sent his North Carolina State football team through an intensive scrimmage session today in anticipation of the Southern conference game with University of Florida here Saturday. Smith claims his re-energized power lineup improved since the Davidson game last Saturday.

ALABAMA.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 30.—(UP)—The Alabama second team tried out its strength against Ole Miss plays as produced by the freshman squad in a long session as Coach Frank Thomas groomed his charges for the first Southern conference game with Mississippi Saturday.

TULANE.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Three valuable stars, Zimmerman, Roberts and Payne, will be missing from the Tulane lineup in the Texas Aggies game Saturday. They suffered kidney injuries, a sprained ankle and a broken nose, respectively, in the game with Ole Miss last week-end.

LOYOLA.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(UP)—The Loyola Wolves have been warned to watch out for Art Koeniger, 195-pound center, known as the "one-man defense" of the Chattanooga Moccasins, who play the Wolves here Friday night.

NORTH CAROLINA.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Sept. 30.—(UP)—University of North Carolina gridirers today worked on their defense against Vanderbilt plays, exhibited to the varsity by the freshmen yesterday, in preparation for meeting the Commodores Saturday. Tricky reverses and long passes were the principal problems remaining to be solved.

CLEMSON.

CLEMSON COLLEGE, S. C., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Downcast over his team's prospects against Tennessee Saturday, but hopeful of "holding the score below that of last year," Coach Neely yesterday drilled the Tigers in defense and promised more of the same medicine for today.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 30.—(AP)—The University of South Carolina Gamecocks turned their second practice session of the week into something resembling a pep meeting, and ended by cooler weather, game to serious business behind closed doors on some new plays to be used against Georgia Tech Saturday.

DUKE.

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Duke's first and second varsities, defeated by South Carolina Saturday, today were smarting under defeats by their own yearlings in practice. The frosh ran two touchdowns over the second-string and one over the first, while the varsity held the line to six straight gainless downs and no scores. Duke meets V. M. I. Saturday.

WILLIAM AND MARY.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Smiling John Kellison today gave the William and Mary varsity squads through their last scrimmage period with the freshmen before leaving for the annual battle with the University of Virginia Saturday. The varsity held the line in functioning in fine order, while the backfield combination—Maxey, Palse, Chokko and Constantino—have developed plenty of drive.

ARKANSAS.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Using Hendry defensive formations, the University of Arkansas freshman gridirers halted all efforts of the varsity during scrimmage sessions today as the Razorbacks neared the end of their training for the Warriors' invasion Saturday. Taking no chances on injuries to his stellar players, Coach Fred C. Thomsen has held Edwin and Stout, tackles, and Johnson, end, out of hard work.

MISS. A. & M.

STARKEVILLE, Miss., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Injuries continued to worry Mississippi A. and M. today as Summerour, varsity guard, broke a bone in his right arm during practice, and joined Captain Phillip Goussett, center, and Maxwell, half, on the hospital list. Summerour will be out several weeks. Captain Goussett was hurt in the Millsaps game Saturday, and probably will not return in time to play against Mississippi College Saturday.

HARVARD.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Flat passes, not more than a dozen yards long, have been effective in Harvard practice this week. Captain Barry Wood is to do most of the passing, and during the passing season as he did last year.

DARTMOUTH.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 30.—(UP)—For the first time this season Head Coach Jackson Cannell sent his Dartmouth football team through a secret practice session today. Hereafter, it was announced, spectators will be barred.

W. AND L.

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Virtually the entire Washington and Lee squad engaged in a long scrimmage session with the freshmen this afternoon and found the going very rough. The varsity was able to score by passes and a long run by Mattox, but it was a hard tussle with the yearlings all the way. Coach Dehart gave the squad several new plays.

V. M. I.

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 30.—(AP)—V. M. I. backs drove for nearly an hour today at "B" and "C" line in order to smooth out the kinks in their running attack. Bill Smith, Lavender, Watkins and Waite broke through on some plays for good gains, but blocking was ragged at other times, and the coaches were forced to stop play and check up the assignment of each man.

VIRGINIA.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Captain Bill Thomas was in uniform for the first time this week today, and ran signals with the varsity. He was replaced by Gene Stevens, however, when daily scrimmage started. He has been laid up with a persistent charley horse, but will be ready for the Maryland game Saturday.

INDIANS OUTBID.

The Yankees Tigers and Senators tried to buy Sarge Connolly, Toledo pitcher, but Cleveland made the best bid, $20,000 and players.

TACKLE SHIFT IN TIGER CAMP GETS RESULTS

McCullum Does Well in First Scrimmage at New Position.

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 30.—Judging from his showing in the initial scrimmage of the week against the freshman team, Fred McCullum, who started the first game for Auburn against Birmingham-Southern at center and was switched to tackle Monday, will be a strong contender for left tackle. He did very well against the frosh after receiving expert coaching from Coach Sam McCallister, and is rugged and aggressive enough to become an outstanding tackle.

Tackle is not new for the former Ensley star. He performed at this berth and also at end on the 1930 plebe team, being shifted to center during the spring. McCullum has received several assignments since wearing the Orange and Blue, and it is believed that, with hard work and a willing spirit, he will rate as one of the best tackles on the team.

With the moving of McCullum to tackle, Auburn has only three candidates for the snapper-back berth. Ralph Jordan, who was running neck and neck with McCullum before the first game and is one of the most improved players on the team; Lee Johnson, veteran, and Will Cretzberg, sophomores, are the aspirants for the post-leader of the line.

The departure of Dunham Harkins, 1930 captain, Jordan, the basketball star, is rated above the others at present, and will continue to occupy position No. 1 if he becomes a little more accurate in passing and improves his all-around playing as the season grows older.

SIX SOPHS ON FIRST.

In the initial rough work in preparation for Wisconsin, the Tigers' opponents in Madison October 10, Coach Chet Wynne had six sophomores, two juniors and three seniors running with the first team. Jordan was at center; Searcy and Chambers at guards; McCullum and Co-captain Bush at tackles; Grant and Arlail on the wings; Co-captain Davidson at center; Phipps and Rogers at halves; and Brown and Davidson at fullbacks. Searcy, Chambers, McCullum, Arlail, Phipps and Rogers are sophomores; Grant and Brown, juniors, and Bush, Jordan and Davidson, seniors.

The brisk weather pepped the players up a good deal and gains were made frequently against the yearlings who performed on the defense a little over 30 minutes. Phipps and Brown looked best in ground-gaining, while the other backs and several of the linemen showed up well in the blocking department.

BROWN HAILED.

Brown, who made a perfect block against a Birmingham-Southern player when Lindley Hatfield scored the first touchdown of the season for the Plainsmen, was able to get past the line of scrimmage on several tries but failed to do any fancy dodging and was generally nailed by the secondary. He was running into his tacklers, where a little dodging would have come in mighty handy. However, his blocking was one of the highlights of the mock battle.

If Firpo Phipps' last year's injury remains all right, the ball-carrying department will be considerably stronger.

Gabby Celebrates 49th Birthday

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Gabby Street, grizzled manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, celebrates his forty-ninth birthday today with the hope that he can add a world's series victory to climax his 30 years of baseball experience.

"I have had many experiences in the old game," Street said, "and if I can grab a world's series over the Athletics I will be the happiest man in the world."

Street was born in Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 30, 1882.

CORB'S DECLINE

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(P)—Led by utilities, curb prices weakened again today, and many made new bear market lows. Activity increased to approximately 650,000 shares compared with yesterday's turnover of half a million.

The market was moderately heavy during the morning, but Electric Bond & Share's steadiness around 19 tended to check selling. However, that lender eventually broke to 2 1/2 and then to 1 1/4 of the previous price for net loss of a point. Associated Gas "A," United Light "A," Commonwealth Edison, Duke Power and American Gas had little support when selling got under way.

The oils group was not particularly disturbed by Standard of Indiana's break into new low group on a net loss of 1 1-2. The final quotation, 18 1-8, was the day's low. Humble and Gulf eased moderately. Cities and Standard Oil of Indiana held steady, old minimum before reducing its loss to 3-8.

Specialties softened. Aluminum of America, Great Atlantic & Pacific and Morton Johnson were heavier than the average.

Investment trusts were mostly weak. United Founders and American Foreign Investors and Shenandoah common and preferred recorded new lows.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30. (AP)—Secretary Hester, of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, reported today the United States cotton exports to foreign countries for the first nine months of 1925 totaled 2,255,405 bales during September.

HOOVER OPPOSES DEBENTURE PLAN

European Cotton Group Warned Not To Expect Action in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Secretary Hyde informed the European Cotton Association today that the Hoover administration was opposed to an export debenture on cotton.

Replying to cablegrams from the association, which is composed of various European cotton exchanges, Hyde said it was "inconceivable that congress would take any action, the benefit of which would accrue to the buyers rather than to the producers of American cotton."

The association had informed the department that the proposal for enactment of a debenture was preventing buyers of manufactured cotton goods abroad from placing orders.

"In the same way," the cable added, "importers are being seriously hindered from buying. It is obvious that such uncertainty is gravely limiting the purchase of the present cotton crop until something definite is known of the views and intentions of the American government which would permit buyers to operate with a feeling that such purchases would not be adversely affected later by the passage of the debenture proposition."

Secretary Hyde requested the Liverpool Cotton Association to inform "interested parties" that debentures and similar measures for subsidizing exports of American cotton are not the law of this country, but are mere

PLAYWRIGHT SLAIN IN CHURCH PLOT

Friend of Former Years Finds Victim Strangled in Artists' Colony.

WESTPORT, Conn., Sept. 30.—(UP)—The exclusive but Bohemian "silver mine" artists' colony of Westport was shocked today by discovery of a real-life murder which might have been "act one" in any of the mystery plays produced by its imaginative authors.

The body of Kenneth Reisbeck, playwright, was found strangled in the cemetery of Grace church. Reisbeck's automobile, in which he had come to Westport from Plainfield, N. J., recently, was found parked in front of the morgue. Finger prints on Reisbeck's neck indicated he had been strangled. The body was in a hollow formed by an uprooted tree. Its discoverer was John Somers, a Bridgeport contractor, who had wandered through the cemetery by chance, and whose horror at the discovery was heightened by the fact that he had known Reisbeck, several years ago, in California.

The murdered playwright was 32 years old, and a protégé of Mrs. A. P. Garrett, a wealthy Westport woman, at whose residence he made his home. Early this summer, Mrs. Garrett went to Europe, closing her home here. Reisbeck moved to Plainfield and is believed to have lived there through the summer. The time of his reappearance in Westport is uncertain.

Somers, coming to Westport today to consult an architect who lives opposite the Grace church cemetery, suggested a short walk. Chance took the two men through the cemetery, and their attention was attracted to the uprooted tree. As they investigated it, they discovered the playwright's body.

Old-fashioned barbecue will be given at Carroll's golf course, on Gordon street near Cascade avenue, Saturday afternoon by the Calvary Methodist church, West End. The affair, which is sponsored by the board of stewards of the church, will begin at 1 o'clock and continue until
